Beach fire fighters tired of old images

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun editor

"The biggest danger in being a fire fighter," said Virginia Beach Fire Department Captain W. V. Simmons, "is not knowing how much danger you're actually in until you enter the flaming house.

"Older buildings and houses allow deadly fires to rapidly consume walls and ceilings within minutes. New structures are dangerous because of the toxic chemicals that burn; and often linger after the flames are out."

A dangerous profession

Fire fighting in Virginia Beach is dangerous. Beach fire fighters practice and train rigorously in preparation to battle the flaming foes. They also say they're tired of some people who still think all fire fighters do is sit around the firehouse and play checkers.

"It's true that we only spend about 10% of our time actually fighting fires," said Beach Fire Captain R. R. Ramsey, "but the rest of our time is taken up with very necessary activities which must be performed to insure that we conduct fire fighting techniques in ways that will provide for the safety of local residents and fire fighters.

"I hope people can understand that fire fighters do more than sit around the firehouse, smoke cigarettes, eat, and play checkers. I mean, Backgammon is a faster game anyway! But seriously, not only do fire fighters have to risk their lives fighting fires to earn their paycheck but they must also clean, maintain, and in some cases repair all the Virginia Beach station houses and equipment; plus perform school inspections."

Virginia Beach fire houses number 15, and can cost up to $734,000 each, as is the expected cost of the upcoming new Kempsville firehouse.

Beach fire fighting equipment includes 88 assorted vehicles worth over $3.5 million. Consequently, before men or women are allowed to use the various fire fighting implements, they must first pass a written exam, an agility test, and 13 weeks of training at the fire department's training center on Birdneck Road. If they finish that, then they must go before an interview, and a hiring board.

The early history

But Beach fire fighting has not always been so sophisticated. The early history of the Virginia Beach Fire Department dates back to the early 1900's according to Mark Marchbank, assistant to the Beach fire chief.

"The Virginia Beach Fire Department," Marchbank said, "was the only organized department at the beach from the 1900's to the 1940's.

"After World War II, civil defense units became the basis for the volunteer companies in the rest of the city.

"During the 1970's, paid personnel were gradually budgeted into the volunteer system,

Fire fighters boost new image; they do much more than play checkers

and the first Beach fire chief was named: E. B. Bayne.

"In 1974 Chief Harry Diezel replaced Bayne, who retired.

"From 1975 to the present, the department has grown while still maintaining its volunteer system."

Beach department progressive

Beach fire captain D. W. Land said Beach fire fighters are progressive, and appreciate the help of the volunteers.

"Virginia Beach has a very progressive fire fighting department," Land said, "based on recent fire fighting training techniques and standards the department has set.

"Modern fire fighters have a better understanding now, than ever before in history of knowing how to fight fires. Also, much credit has to be given to Chief Diezel who brought to the department many of his progressive techniques for battling blazes. The Chief really knows his business.

"We also give credit to approximately 200 volunteers who stand in the line of action and face the fires head-on just like the paid, career fire fighters. Occasionally there may be a difference of opinion between the paid men and the volunteers over style or techniques; but

Oven fire

A hot time in DeLong's home

Editor's note: Last week, a Sun reporter rode with Virginia Beach fire department captains for five days.

He saw no flames after responding to five calls, but did see the fire fighters in action at a potential fire at the home of Beach resident and Sperry-Univac deputy manager Edgar DeLong.

Baycliff section of Beach

The oven in his home at 1500 Hidden Cove, Baycliff, began smoking heavily, and in fear of an electrical fire, he phoned the fire department.

The following is an account of the incident by the reporter:

"It's quiet around the station now. Dusk has fallen and Captain Simmons and I have just returned from visiting several of the fire stations in his district.

Without warning, three pre-alert beeps sound over the station's communications system. 'Station 8 respond to an oven fire at 1500 Hidden Cove, in Baycliff.'

Immediately, the captain was headed for his car; fire fighters were suiting up and getting on the truck. We were already in the street and

(See FIRSTpage 4)

Department updates techniques

when the fire alarm goes off, all differences are set aside and everyone pulls together to respond to the alarm as quickly and efficiently as possible."

Can't predict Beach fires

Captain Land said fires are unpredictable, and very dangerous.

"There is no one area of Virginia Beach more accident prone than another," Land said. "Fires may happen anywhere at anytime."

"There's little the department can do to prevent fires other than make safety suggestions to different concerns during our routine fire inspections of businesses and schools.

"Most fire fighters want to be fire fighters because it makes them happy!"—Land

"We do, however, try to keep an extremely close watch on new nursing homes or schools in the area; facilities in which elderly people live and would require special attention if a fire did erupt; and for children who would not be sure how to react in case of fire.

"To keep on top of fire fighting the fire department must continually keep updating its techniques and equipment. We must strive to educate ourselves to the upmost, so we can, in turn, educate the community and protect them to the best of our abilities.

"It is the fire department's duty to point out areas in which individuals could make safety improvements; or areas which are not safe at all."

Watergate Apartments

Two-thirds of an apartment complex in Watergate, Birdneck Road, was destroyed in two and one-half hours. The 1973 fire was fought by 50 fire fighters.

First fire

accelerating as the large garage doors of the fire station were rising. Speeding down the street, the captain is confirming his destination with the dispatcher; a fire fighter is in the back seat looking at a map and giving him directions; and I, riding at 50 miles per hour, am noticing the streets are a little slick from a light rain. Soon, we have reached the house just moments before an engine arrives.

The fire fighters rush into the house to find a scared family and a locked oven full of smoke.

'It won't open' the fighter said. The owner had cut off the electricity leading to it, and that, plus the fact that the oven automatically locks at a certain temperature prevent the fire fighters from opening it.

They blasted it with the extinguisher hoping to cool it down, and open it. As of this week, it still hasn't opened.

"It's the first time I've ever had anything but a little grease fire in my house," DeLong said."

Oceans condo

Fires on both the 10th and 13th floors on the Oceans condominiums erupted during construction of the 20 story highrise on Jan. 30, 1975. The blazes, which erupted on the East side of the building, trapped two workmen on the 10th floor. Fire truck 11, from the Beach Borough Station 11, can be seen moving its 100 foot tall-ladder into position.

Sandler Seafoods, 30 or 40 years ago. Not many of the Beach fire fighters today recall details of the fire that broke out at the business located off Northampton Boulevard.

Windsor Woods house

August 28, 1977. At 3:30 a.m. that Sunday fire was detected on Great Meadows Court in the Windsor Woods section of Virginia Beach. Thirty-five fire fighters hosed down flames for three to four hours at the single family dwelling. The fire was a result of a gasoline explosion. No injuries were reported.

55th Street Condo

Carrying up to 70 pounds of fire fighting equipment, Virginia Beach fire fighter Lt. Jim Kunkler of the Oceana Station is exhausted from battling blazes in a 55th Street condominium about five years ago. The fire, which occurred one night late in December, caused $1 million in damage.

Ocean Air Motel

March, 1975, the Ocean Air Motel became a roaring inferno late one winter night as Beach fire fighters poured water on the blazes for two hours. The two story building was located on General Booth Boulevard, near Rudee Inlet.

Beacher's like job

They like the job

Salaries for Beach fire fighters begin at a little over $13,000. They work for a 24 hour shift and then are off duty for 48. They receive all employee benefits, including:

"Annual leave; flexible personal holidays; funeral leave; health insurance; holiday policy; leave of absence without pay; life insurance; maternity leave; military training leave; overtime policy; sick leave; tuition reimbursement; and workman's compensation," according to the fire fighter's official handbook.

Land said the fire department has had little problem getting applicants for any open fire fighting positions.

"So far," Land said, "we have been lucky."

"Usually we have no trouble at all getting employment applicants for the fire department."

"Most fire fighters, however, want to be fire fighters because it makes them happy; they don't do it for the money!"

Davis enjoys living by Atlantic Ocean

"One of the primary reasons I like living in Virginia Beach," said North end resident Gail Davis, "is being close to the water.

"I wouldn't want to live in any other section of the city; if it's not near the ocean it's just not the same."

Active in high school

Davis, a five year Beach resident, is a facilities consultant for a commercial interior design firm in Norfolk.

She is married, two years, to Chuck Davis, a local real estate agent.

Born in Norfolk, Davis graduated from Granby High School.

"I was pretty active in high school," she said, "including a lot of academic, student, and community related activities.

"After high school I attended college in Louisburg, N.C., and at Old Dominion University in Norfolk. I was studying psychology."

Loves to travel

The holder of a Virginia real estate license, Davis' hobbies includes sailing, bicycling, and traveling.

"I have seen most of the United States," she said, "and Mexico, Europe, and the Orient. We just came back from Aspen, Colorado, and are already planning to go back.

Her favorite Beach nightspots include The Raven, The Shack, and Cafe Zoe's. Davis expects to settle the Beach indefinitely.

"Yes, I will probably live here forever," she said. "There's an outside chance that we would move to Colorado; but, I'm not sure."

Young Audiences perform

By Cheryl Copper,
Special to the Sun

The Virginia Chapter of Young Audiences, Inc. brought the third year of a special seven week program entitled, "Creative Adventure" to five Virginia Beach schools recently.

Funding assistance was provided by the Virginia Beach Commission for the Arts and Humanities; The Virginia Beach School System and The Virginia Chapter of Young Audiences. The funds helped to make the program accessible to Green Run, Woodstock, Indian Lakes, Kempsville Meadows, and Arrowhead Elementary Schools.

Expose arts

The program was designed to communicate a concrete understanding of the creative arts process to Beach students by using actors John Hornaday (key artist), Jay Lockamy and actress Laurel Tsirimokos and the American Jazz Ensemble: Gary Gompers, Anthony Destio, Roy Smith, Sonny Morgan and Dave Greenberg.

The professional artists have worked with one chosen (control) class at each school for the entire series, making every attempt to help facilitate a performance oriented experience that expresses an art form true to the children's experiences and means of expression.

Students work with improvisation in music and acting, creative story building, creative problem solving, props, costumes and rehearsal. Other classes at each school receive workshops by the individual actors and jazz musicians and partake in the final production in which they will see the presentation by the actors, the American Jazz Ensemble and the student control class' performance interweaving all the elements they learned in the previous weeks.

For more information, call 623-5268, or 426-7052.

City Council News

Ordinance changes proposed

Council considers water, and cabs

By Lee Cahill

Sun City Council correspondent

Virginia Beach utilities customers face a possible increase of 23 percent in their water bills and 40 percent in their sewer service charges starting Jan. 1.

The rate ordinances will be considered by City Council next Monday. City manager George L. Hanbury said at an informal meeting of Council Monday that the Utilities Department was the hardest hit of any department and needed a 20 cent water rate increase to get it through the fiscal year. He said another five-cent increase was needed to pay for the bonds authorized in the November referendum.

The proposed ordinance calls for a flat rate of $1.31 per 1,000 gallons for water and eliminates decreased rates for larger users. Increased sewer maintenance fees are also proposed for all users with the monthly charge for single-family residences increasing from $5 to $7.

The water ordinance also streamline some features of the rate procedure. It eliminates the need for customers to sign a contract when requesting water service. A phone call will do.

It eliminates the requirement for customers to place a deposit for water service except where there is a problem with delinquency in payment of bills.

It changes the amount of escrow deposit for installation of 1½-inch and two-inch meters to an estimate of actual costs.

The meter maintenance charge is changed to a minimum service availability charge and raises the rate to the amount it actually costs to keep an account active and cover all related costs.

Hanbury said he still doesn't know what Virginia Beach's share will be of the cost of establishing emergency water sources by the City of Norfolk.

Councilman Reid Ervin suggested giving people who conserve a lower rate. That is, charge the bigger users $1.40 per 1,000 gallons and the conservationists, $1.31 per 1,000 gallons. "There ought to be some way to give conservationists a break on the price," he said.

Council, meanwhile, in ordinances approved Monday, waived surcharges which accompanied water allocation measures for the period starting Oct. 13 and authorized exemptions for certain customers.

Hanbury said that since Virginia Beach did not go beyond its allocation and incurred no surcharge from Norfolk, he thought it only fair to make no surcharges among the Beach customers.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf said that some of the people who conserve believe it is unfair for those who did not to benefit.

Hanbury said that "the only thing I could justify is to publish the names of the people who went over in the newspaper."

Vice Mayor Harold Heischouer who presided at the meeting in the absence of Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr., said that at the outset we said that if the city did not exceed the quota, there would be no individual penalties.

Surcharges will be effective again starting Dec. 1 and will remain in effect for at least one complete (two month) billing period for each meter.

Hanbury was authorized to increase allotments for hospital/convallescent homes, for customers who need extra water to treat a proven medical condition, and for households with four or more residents who consume less than 50 gallons per person per day to the amount of actual consumption.

Beacher's vote for mayor

Under three proposed charter changes, the Virginia Beach mayor would be elected directly by the people, City Council would set its own salaries and the chief judge of circuit court would be required to call for an advisory referendum in the place of City Council.

Before Council decides whether to recommend these changes to the 1981 General Assembly, it will hear from the people. A public hearing will be scheduled, probably for Dec. 15, to get the views of the citizens.

In the meantime, Council Monday afternoon approved 16 new legislative proposals and a number of bills covering 14 areas carried over from the 1980 session of the General Assembly.

According to a plan for the direct election of mayor proposed by Councilman Reid Ervin, mayoral candidates would come from the ranks of Council members, Council members running for re-election and new candidates for Council. Prospective candidates for mayor would have their names placed on the ballot during the bi-annual Councilmanic election. In the case of those running for Council, their names would appear twice.

Ervin said that he has heard objections from Council about the direct election. Of its possible conflict with the city's 7-4 plan (seven Councilmen members elected to represent each borough and four at-large), he said that despite difficulties of the 7-4 plan "we have been able to hold representative Councils."

Ervin seeks to change how mayor is elected

Ervin

Councilman John A. Baum said that with direct elections he could see some of the same frustrations addressed in another way. "We may have more trouble than we do now," he said.

Ervin said that voters are more discreet than you give them credit for. Good people will emerge as candidates.

Councilman Patrick L. Standing said, "I wonder if you'll have anyone filing for mayor!"

At an earlier informal session of Council Ervin said that everything would be the same except that the mayor would be elected by the people.

The charter change proposed in relation to the compensation of Council members, seeks the elimination of the dollar amount ($4,800 a year) to allow City Council to establish its own salaries. An alternate would be to change the dollar amounts to $8,000 for Council and $10,000 for mayor.

Members of the General Assembly have many financial advantages denied to members of Council, city manager George L. Hanbury pointed out last week. They are eligible for the Virginia Supplemental Retirement plan and state life and accident insurance. They receive $8,000 a year with speaker of the House receiving $16,000 a year, in addition to other payments such as $50 expenses a day while the assembly is in session, $200 a month for office expenses when the General Assembly is not in session and $50 a day while engaged in General Assembly business when it is not in session.

Standing said Monday that he didn't want to give himself a raise. "I knew I was going to make $4,800."

Councilman Donald Merrick said he had no objection to giving future Council members a raise, but "didn't want one now."

Ervin said that the proposed change merely gives Council the option of increasing Council salaries.

Baum said he was looking for "an outpouring of citizens to see what they think we're worth."

The third charter change would eliminate the requirement that City Council must call for an advisory referendum if a petition is signed by 25 percent of the qualified voters in the last election. The Chief judge of the circuit court would have to call for the referendum. This would avoid the awkward situation Council found itself in this year when it had to call an advisory referendum on the presence of homosexual publications in the Public Library.

Council will meet with the city's representatives to the General Assembly next Monday to discuss all the legislative proposals.

David Grochmal, assistant to the city manager who represents the city's interests at the General Assembly, said that he would place special emphasis on bills which would benefit the city most monetarily.

Among the new proposals are:

- Interp-basin transfer of water with ultimate state control.
- Increased highway construction funding. Base fund allocation on need rather than on a percentage system assigning 50 percent to the primary system, 25 percent to the urban system and 25 percent to the secondary system. Convert the state gasoline tax to a percentage of the wholesale price instead of a fixed amount per gallon.
- Increase the per pupil allocation for 1981 to $1,373 recommended by the State Board and of Education instead of $1,099.
- Amend the Code of Virginia to state that heart and lung disabilities for firefighters and police officers which are presumed to be job-related may be refuted when competent evidence indicates such impairment did not arise out of the line of duty.
- Enact legislation which would allow localities to adopt local ordinances requiring the installation of smoke detectors in all residential units, both new and old.
- Allow localities who to choose to consolidate their mosquito control districts under a single commission to place the commission under the appropriate city department as determined by the local governing body. At present a consolidated mosquito commission is placed under the Health Department.
- Redistrict the Tidewater area to provide for two senatorial districts totally within the boundaries of Virginia Beach and five House of Delegates seats totally within the boundaries of Virginia Beach. At present the city has two senatorial districts overlapping with adjacent localities and one floater house district with two adjacent localities.

Yellow cabs banned?

The City of Virginia Beach has asked the State Corporation Commission to rescind a temporary authority granted to Yellow Cab of Norfolk, Inc., to operate in Virginia Beach.

The SCC was scheduled to consider rescinding the authority Wednesday afternoon in Richmond.

Yellow Cab of Norfolk, trading as Brown's Auto Service, had applied to Virginia Beach City Council for a certificate of public convenience and necessity to operate a limousine service for the merchant ships anchored off Lynnhaven. The ships are the overflow coal ships from Norfolk which, Brown maintains have been served by the company for years.

After Council deferred action on the application until after a meeting of area cab companies to discuss various differences, Yellow Cab chose another route and got permission to operate directly from the SCC. The SCC is empowered to grant this authority on the basis that there is an urgent need for this service.

Henley wants better communication

Virginia Beach maintains that although the SCC has the authority to do this, the city objects to the procedure followed by the applicant. Yellow Cab's attorney, Thomas W. Moss, a delegate to the State Legislature, made a telephone call to the SCC and the authority was granted with no public hearing or comment, according to a resolution approved Monday.

With this authority in hand, Yellow Cab asked Virginia Beach cab companies, deferred action instead until the SCC hearing.

Of the area meeting of taxi cab interests, Cohen said that every time Virginia Beach interests mentioned doing away with fare-and-a-half, it was shot down by the City of Norfolk and its taxi operators.

Under present regulations, Virginia Beach cabs are not permitted to pick up fares in Norfolk and vice versa. When a cab crosses the city line, a fare-and-a-half is charged to make up for the fact that the cab can not pick up a return fare. The practice works a hardship on Virginia Beach cabs because Regional Airport, a lucrative source of fares, is in Norfolk while the passengers often are tourists headed for the beach who are charged fare-and-a-half most of the way.

Cohen said a denial would be playing in the hands of the applicant and withdrawal would be tantamount to denial.

Vice Mayor Harold Heischober said last week that he was in favor of the Norfolk application at first, but "in view that they circumvented...and Langley Land (president of Yellow Cab) had not adhered to his promises..."

Land had told the Beach Council he would support elimination of fare-and-a-half during the area deliberations.

Councilman John A. Baum suggested hiring a "delegate" to represent the city's interests. "Hire a member of the General Assembly who is also an attorney," he said. Paralleling the association of Moss to Yellow Cab of Norfolk, he withdrew his suggestion however, "to avoid embarrassment to everyone."

Council Monday endorsed the resolution requesting the state to rescind the temporary authority on the basis that no immediate of urgent need exists for the service and also asked for a public hearing to determine if permanent authority should be granted.

Last week Councilman Reid Ervin said that he got the impression that Lamb had indicated he would be willing to meet and discuss a regional approach... "I don't know what kind of influence Mr. Moss has on those proceedings."

Henley comments

Virginia Beach Councilwoman Barbara Henley feels a "total lack of communication with boards and commissions."

She said she would like some report or communication "even if we only receive the minutes."

She told Council Monday afternoon that the minutes should be placed in the city clerk's office and any Council member interested could go there to read them.

Councilman John A. Baum said he preferred having a "barebones annual report."

Henley said that last December Council requested an attendance report from all the boards and commissions and got only one from the Wetlands Board.

Councilwoman Reba McClanahan said, "It impresses me there is a great deal of room for improvement." She explained that she was talking about the use or lack of use of parliamentary procedure by the boards and commissions. She said she tries to attend meetings of different boards and commissions and noted that there were "absentions right and left" at a Planning Commission meeting. She said there seemed to be no legal reason for the absentions which outnumbered the yays and nays.

Council members are not allowed to abstain unless they state a conflict.

Vice Mayor Harold Heischober, presiding in the absence of Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr., suggested a program be prepared by the mayor, city manager George Hanbury and city clerk Ruth Hodges Smith.

New rehab standards

Virginia Beach City Council has adopted rehabilitation standards for target neighborhoods to qualify for rehabilitation properties under the city's Housing Assistance Plan.

The standards are intended to govern the minimum design and construction criteria of houses rehabilitated by the Community Development Rehabilitation programs.

Without these standards, Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) standards would be imposed which would not be attainable in target neighborhoods.

The standards will be enforced only in target neighborhoods. Homes which cannot be improved to meet these standards come under another category, according to Benjamin C. Moore, Community Development director. They are considered for "interim assistance" which means that a small amount of money will be applied to improve basics such as roofs and making water and sewer connections.

For week of Dec. 4 - 11

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Other people, both at home and on the job, are not particularly open to new ideas. Play the part of the cooperative teammate for best results early in the week. Later on you can move forward on personal ambitions and projects.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Work carefully to avoid errors brought on by accentuating speed. Not the time to sign important contracts or begin projects where a large investment of money is involved. Take time out to do some creative holiday shopping.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Trust your inner instincts and deal with other people's sensitivities by guarding your tongue. Curb your usual restlessness and be patient with the pace at which work projects are moving. A past project could pay off beneficially for you.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Don't let financial worries get you down. Instead, work out a holiday budget with your mate or partner that you can both "live with." Single Cancerians may feel that an emotional relationship is coming to an end but perhaps not just now.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Work out a "spending budget" for the holidays with your family. Work goes well and allows you time for Christmas shopping. Include loved ones into your social life and don't worry unduly about finishing up a job project just now.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Money matters start looking up by mid-week — perhaps a professional adviser could be of help in this regard. Don't go overboard on your holiday gift buying though. Young people, particularly, will be happy with less-expensive gifts.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Face up to any financial problems and solve them by planning ahead. Romantic partnerships are somewhat touchy and you'll have to be careful that a quarrel doesn't develop which could result in a break-up. Keep the holidays simple.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Take a realistic look at your finances and your life. While it's not the time to ask for a raise, you can make positive headway with bosses by presenting your creative ideas and pushing forward toward your goals. Don't let personal problems interfere.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Avoid over-optimism about money matters. Observe a strict budget and see that family members do, too. Tie up the loose ends on holiday plans and preparations. Mail cards, plan menus and decorations, and fix up your home attractively.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Loved ones

may be feeling neglected because of your concentrated activity in the "outside world." Make concessions and also help them understand your needs. Put your artistic abilities to work now and the results could surprise you!

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Some Aquarians may be terminating a long-standing relationship. Instead of dwelling on negative emotions, throw yourself into your work. Get the cooperation of colleagues and co-workers for the best results. Delegate authority to them.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Unattached Pisceans could find a romantic partner and "fall in love at first sight!" The time is right for asking for a raise or promotion, so talk to your boss about it now. Concentrate on finishing up routine jobs of work before the holidays.

Beach extension agent reports

Christmas turkeys are a good deal

By Anne Gilmer
Beach extension agent

One of every three turkeys that goes into a Virginia Beach oven this holiday season will bring along its own insurance policy for good eating.

Figure it this way: 62 million whole turkeys will have been sold by the time 1980 comes to an end. More than 20 million of them, primarily basted premium birds, will carry their own cooking gauges.

This little device is welcome insurance for the cook who has bought a big bird and wants to be sure the meal turns out right to serve a crowd. By indicating when a bird is roasted to perfection, the timer is an added confidence-builder, too. It may even produce an energy-conservation bonus - no need to "cook a little longer, just to be sure" and risk "drying out" the turkey.

Timers

Pop-up timers, which resemble tiny "bullseyes," are preinserted into turkeys by 23 poultry processors who supply most of the top national and regional supermarket chains. The timers are designed for one-time use and one purpose only; to give a sure indication of when the turkey is done and at its best.

Why the necessity for such a device? Because the world is so full of variables - conditions that affect doneness - that cooking charts can tell only approximately when a bird will be cooked just right.

Variables include:

- The size of the bird,
- whether it's stuffed or not,

- whether the oven thermostat is correctly calibrated (a 25 degree variation in oven temperature can cause up to a 20 percent variation in cooking time),

- differences in roasting characteristics of ovens, and

- what temperature the bird is when it's placed in the oven.

Even the great American pastime of peeking, by any and all, at the roasting main course can affect oven temperature.

Variables, however, mean nothing to pop-up timers, a timer singlemindedly does nothing until proper internal meat temperatures reached - that's 185° for the deepest part of the turkey breast or thigh. Then the center of the timer pops up, a sure visible signal to the cook. Results of tests on turkey cooking showed that the foil tent method is preferred over the uncovered method for best cooking uniformity. Also preferred are breast up position, a v-rack set in a shallow pan and placement in the middle of a 325°F oven.

Film cooking bag

Whatever a cook's own favorite cooking method, however, the timers will perform just as accurately and dependably - in a convection oven as well as a standard gas or electric oven. In an oven film cooking bag. Even on a covered barbecue grill, as long as the timer is shielded from direct flame. More timers are being used all the time. Look for them in further processed parts, such as breasts, as well as in fresh and frozen whole birds. And look for them even after the holidays are over. Turkey, while once a seasonal treat, is now popular as year 'round good eating.

Against choking

Beach children are warned

Teaching Virginia Beach small children the importance of chewing food well is a great preventative of choking accidents. So is keeping off the floor and out of reach any pieces of toys or ornaments and buttons that can be popped in the mouths of toddlers or crawling babies.

These points are made by Dr. James P. Baker, Chairman of the Medical Advisory Committee of the Virginia Lung Association's Southeastern Region.

Danger!

"The Lung Association is concerned that choking kills more children under six years of age than any other home accident," Dr. Baker said.

By Lil Youell,
Special to the Sun

The Thoroughgood Garden Club will present its 12th Holiday House on Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 6 and 7, from noon until 5 p.m. in the Clyde L. Owens home, 1601 Stokes Court, off Thoroughgood Drive in Virginia Beach.

"Club members will decorate the house for Christmas using natural materials such as greenery, cones, seed pods, flowers," A club spokesman said.

One unique feature this year will be an herb ball for the kitchen fashioned by Mrs. Fletcher Manning," she continued, Herb balls are similar to the traditional Williamsburg kissing balls, but are made of herbs such as mint, sage, thyme, fragrant geranium. They add a pleasant scent as well as an attractive fresh touch of greenery.

"The house this year is called "A Holiday House of

Mrs. Owens, Mrs. Thorpe and Mrs. Barry with items to be sold in the Bazaar Boutique. Greg Goldfarb—Sun

Dolls" because many rare and antique dolls will be displayed in imaginative ways. For instance, there will be a pair of dolls skating on an imaginary ice rink on the porch. Mrs. Milton W. Thorpe is Chairman of the Holiday House. The President of the Club is Mrs. James Barry."

The Festive Sweet Shop will be run by Mrs. W. H. Harrison and Mrs. T. W. Gray and will feature home made "goodies". Visitors may purchase Christmas items from the Bazaar Boutique which is being arranged by Mrs. Harold M. Green and Mrs. John A. Tinkham.

A donation is requested at the door and proceeds from the Holiday House will be used for charitable and civic projects.

"Reach Out"

To a drowning man, an outstretched hand is literally a life-saver. One can easily imagine the relief he feels when someone pulls him to safety.

The church is like an outstretched hand to the community. It bids those who are spiritually drowning to experience the saving grace of God's love. If you or someone you know needs the outstretched hand of the church, reach out and grasp the helping hand it offers. You will find the church, too, is a life-saver.

Ad agencies merge

The merger of three Tidewater advertising and public relations firms was announced today. Jerry Hammer & Associates, William E. Allsbrook & Associates, and Kennedy & Kennedy, Inc., have joined to form the new firm of Kennedy, Allsbrook & Hammer.

According to William Kennedy, "It was an extremely compatible merger since we were not in direct competition with each other. Each of our firms represents a different kind of client base, and each contributes to the overall range of services to be offered by our new firm."

Jerry Hammer, former president of Jerry Hammer & Associates, cited the advantages of "shared administrative costs, which will reflect in economies for our clients."

"Our creative range has been dramatically increased because of the synergistic effect of combining our creative staffs," said William Allsbrook, former president of William E. Allsbrook & Associates.

Kennedy, Allsbrook & Hammer will be headquartered at the beachfront in Virginia Beach.

Surfer to councilman

Beach native Kitchin doing well!

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun editor

"I never really thought much about politics," said Beach borough councilman W. Hugh "Butch" Kitchin, III.

"But, I believe that if a man lives and works in a community throughout life, he should be active in it and contribute to its general well being."

Kitchin, who has lived most of his life within a few blocks of the Virginia Beach shoreline, is a classic example of a hometown kid doing well. Even before he became a successful Beach businessman or was elected to his council seat last Summer, he was already active in community affairs, including founding and serving as president of the Old Beach Civic League.

"I grew up right here in downtown Virginia Beach," Kitchin, 38, said. "So it's natural that over the years, local Beach residents began coming to me with questions or problems concerning how to work with the city government. Folks knew that my father had served on council, from 1954 to Sept. 1966, but he usually was very busy; so, people would come to me for help. He is now chairman of the Beach erosion commission."

"I would go down to City Hall and register some of the matters, such as noise late at night, zoning questions, or absentee ownership, and see what could be legally done to correct the matters by the city, or by the local residents."

"One thing led to another and one night some interested Beach residents got together over a pot luck dinner and formed the Old Beach Civic League to assist the Beach community and its residents."

Jan Kitchin, Butch's wife of 16 years, said the league was formed to, among other things, preserve the resort neighborhood.

"We wanted to keep the neighborhood in the same condition as the older Beach residents remembered," Jan said. We also wanted the newer residents, and tourists, to be impressed with, and proud of the downtown resort part of Virginia Beach. The civic league tried to maintain a high aesthetic quality in Virginia Beach; and promote civic pride and community services."

Councilman Kitchin added, "the civic league gives Beach residents a sense of assurance. It gives them an outlet for their frustrations over municipal matters; and somewhere to go when they don't know what to do."

Public support grew

Public support for the manager/owner of Kitchin's Kitchen, and the Seahawk Motel, 26th and Atlantic, grew to the point that he was asked repeatedly to run for a council seat.

"I wouldn't have run for the council seat last Summer," Kitchin said, "if I hadn't been asked to for the last few years preceding."

"What really changed my mind, however, was that the incumbent and the two other challengers were not from the Beach borough and were really not in touch with what was going on down here. I didn't know for sure if I was the better candidate than the other men, but I decided it was time to give it a try. I had nothing personal against any of the other candidates. Buddy,

The Kitchin family includes Butch, wife Jan, and children Elizabeth, Pilar, and Meredith

Riggs, Gordon Harper, and Ted Carr are all fine Beach businessmen."

Kitchin won his seat by a 700 vote margin, which he says was "very close." He said serving on council creates only one problem for him.

"I ran for a council seat because I had the city's good, and welfare at heart," he said, "and because I was tired of seeing thousands of dollars spent, sometimes, without a logical reason; I wanted to correct what I thought was wrong."

"Trying to correct the problems, however, requires much work and strain if you are to be productive. It's very hard for me to divorce myself from the feelings, and concerns other local people feel. If I'm involved with someone's plight, I can't get it off my mind; I have to do everything that can possibly be done for that person before I'm satisfied that justice has been, will be, or can be done. And sometimes, even then I'm not satisfied."

Influential father

Some of Kitchin's notoriety can be traced back to his father William Hugh Kitchin, Jr., who was largely responsible, with the help of three other men, for forming the basis of the resort beach services as we know them today.

When Butch was born, his father operated the Kitchin's Kitchen, and the Beach services.

"My father was from Scotland Neck, N.C.," he said, "in fact, most of the Kitchin's were from there. My mother, Blanche Jacob Kitchin, who was from Richmond, met my father in Virginia Beach while he was running Kitchin's Kitchen and operating several life guard stands during the summers on the local beaches."

"But, let me go back further. Before my father even began working in Virginia Beach, his mother and sister were already in business at the Avamere Motel on the oceanfront. My father went into the business at about the age of 15, when the Atlantic Avenue was only a sand road; there were very few hotels or cottages on it. He would work for people, in return for room, board and wages.

"My dad loved Virginia Beach, and its people. As he became older and better in business, he bought out many of the other little Beach businesses. He, with other Beach businessmen, John Smith, Buddy Guy, and Dusty Hinnant, owned most of the Beach concessions that were on the beach back then.

"Then, in the early 1940's, the city adopted a code allowing my father and his partners to be responsible for the policing and patrolling of the Virginia Beach resort beach. They didn't get funding, or receive budgeted money from the city, but were allowed to keep the financial returns from the beach concessions they were operating. They only had to buy a business license. Their operation has subsequently evolved into the North Beach Services."

Beach boy

Kitchin now describes the house he learned to walk in as a "shack in the alley on 26th Street." He lived there for two years before his family bought a house on 42nd Street, where they still live.

"I remember living in a little red shack in the alley, right down from my family's present house on 26th Street," Kitchin said.

"With my family's help, I will...try to serve Beach residents well during my term in office"—Kitchin

"But by the time I began elementary school at W. T. Cook, my family had moved to 42nd Street. I graduated from Virginia Beach High School, which is now Virginia Beach Junior High School, located on 24th Street.

"During high school, I held class officer positions such as treasurer, vice-president and president. I lettered in football as a fullback; and in track, running the 100 yard dash, the 220 and the 440. Over the summers, I was a lifeguard on the beach."

Following graduation, he attended William and Mary College on a football scholarship.

"I had no idea what I wanted to major in," Kitchin recalls.

"I spent my freshman and sophomore years at William and Mary. I didn't play a heck of a lot of football and decided I wanted to take a trip."

Kitchin quit college, thumbed across America to California and took a plane with a friend to Hawaii. The Beach surfer wanted to check out the waves at Oahu.

"I was 20 years old when I took off to meet a friend of mine in California," Kitchin said. "All I took with me was enough money to buy a round trip plane ticket to Hawaii, and a surfboard."

"My buddy and I, after we got to the Islands, had to wash dishes and work in bars to keep money in our pockets. It was real rough getting a job over there then; many, many kids went there every year just like us looking for jobs so we could hang out on the beach; and of course, the island kids had the first choice of any openings.

"Finally, we decided to come back to California, and thumb back to the East Coast. Now, I want to take Jan and the kids back there some day to smell the thousands of acres of pineapples that grow under the brilliant blue skies over Waikiki Beach."

When Kitchin took off for pineapple land, the young Indian was one quality point deficient at the college before he left. Consequently, he had to wait out a year before he was allowed to resume studies there.

"Usually," Kitchin, said, "the college would have let a football player back in who was only one point down, but that year they became more strict. So over that year, I worked for the City of Virginia Beach in the planning commission's office. I was a draftsman in the office responsible for naming and mapping streets."

"I reapplied to William and Mary in 1963 and returned there that Fall; which was one of the best of my life, because it was then that I met Jan and married her in June, 1964. I didn't receive a scholarship again, automatically, but had to earn it back."

"I started playing football again, but didn't letter. I missed some games because of broken arms and a nose. Then my mother became seriously ill, Nov. 1964, late in the season and died. It was a very traumatic experience for my whole family. I remember the day my father came to school to tell me that she was sick. He came to the game; and I remember thinking to myself that I had never seen him look the way he looked before that day. Nor have I seen him look that way since."

"I moved back home and stayed in my father's home for about a year before renting an apartment on Baltic Avenue. For a job I was managing the motel. I did that for three years before deciding to go back to college to get my degree. I was 27."

Jan adds at this point, "and it's funny, it was the first time in his life that he ever made the dean's list."

While finishing up at William and Mary, he received financial aid for coaching football and scouting other teams. He graduated in 1968, but still had a desire to travel.

"Since that time I went out to the West Coast," he said, "I had an itch to do it again. So I bought a Volkswagen camper, and took a little bit of money and drove across the country; only this time I had my family; and I spent three or four weeks doing it so I could see and appreciate all the beauty of this country I missed the first time around."

What a job

In California, Kitchin held several jobs before deciding his real home was here in Virginia Beach.

"You wouldn't believe it," he said, "In California I did everything from sell encyclopedias to cars. In fact, my first job was selling encyclopedias in the City of San Bernardino. I worked at it for about six weeks but I don't think I was very good at it. Instead of me selling them books, the potential customer could turn me around and talk me into buying something from them!

Kitchin played football for William and Mary Tribe

"In addition, I didn't think the business ethics of my employer were the greatest. One day I sold a set of encyclopedias and had a signed contract on them. The man called back, however, and said he changed his mind because he really couldn't afford to pay for them. I told my boss that I had torn up a signed contract because the man said he couldn't afford the books, and my boss went crazy."

"My next job in California was selling Pontiacs. But I had only been working there a few days when I went in (See KITCHIN page 4)

one morning to find that they had locked the doors and moved away. There were a lot of scam artists in the state then.

"Next, I worked for a pool company. I spent two or three days with them before they also locked the doors and moved the company away.

"Finally I landed a night job in a sporting goods store; and I substitute taught in the San Bernadino School System for $25 a day. I recall selling people lots of ski equipment and showed them how to use it like an expert even though I had never been on a pair of snow skis in my life."

Kitchin said he was also considering attending law school at this time in his life, but he applied to be a member of the state highway patrol for the State of California.

"California had a big thing going then," Kitchin said, "in that they wanted their law enforcement forces to be better educated and would even make work schedules to allow for studying.

"I applied for a position and took the exam. The turn around time for complete processing took seven months, but I was going to stick it out. I was notified that I had been accepted to training school in Sacramento, and would have to live in a dorm room for a time. I didn't want to go through all this, especially with a wife and family. But I went to the final interview anyway and had to take a physical. Doctors told me that I had a hernia, and was ineligible for duty.

"I told them that I used to play sports, and had no history of any illness. I still wasn't hired. Even though things probably worked out for the best, I was crushed at the time. I had worked hard, and scored well on the tests. I couldn't believe that the result of all my efforts were being taken away from me. We ended up moving back to the beach in 1969."

Beach teacher

That Summer of 1969, Kitchin worked as head chef in Kitchin's Kitchen. That Fall, he received a hernia operation and recovered successfully. During this time he applied for teaching positions in Virginia Beach.

"I am very proud to serve the city, but my first responsibility is to my family"—Kitchin

"I got a job at Kingston Elementary teaching history and physical education," he said. "I knew the principal at Virginia Beach Junior High, Lee Scarborough, and after I had been at Kingston for two years, he called and said he was going to have an opening at his school in the physical education department. It was convenient and closer to my home.

"But after 1976, after spending six years there I decided to devote all my attentions to the hotel and restaurant. And I've been doing it ever since. Who knows, what I'll do in the future."

Personally

Kitchin has three sisters and a brother: Trudy, 36, a school teacher married to business executive in Syracuse, N.Y.; Margaret Ann, 35, a housewife married to a Beach attorney; Matthew Scott, 10, a sixth grader at Norfolk Christian School; and Amy Beth, 13, a freshman at Norfolk Christian School.

He and Jan have three children: Elizabeth Jacob, 16, a junior at First Colonial High School; Pilar, 11, a sixth grader at W. T. Cook Elementary School; and Meredith, 9, a fourth grader at Cook.

Kitchin's hobbies include fishing, surfing, and exercising. But his first obligation, city council notwithstanding, is to his family.

"I feel good about who I am and what I do," he said. "I am very proud to serve the city of Virginia Beach; but my first responsibility is to my wife and children. I get wrapped up sometimes in the pressures of the hectic work day, but I always take special efforts to care for my family's happiness.

"And with my family's help, I will keep an open mind and try to serve the Beach residents as well as I can during my term in public office. After that period is over, I will decide if I will seek a council seat again."

Why Kitchin's called Butch?

Many of Kitchin's friends call him Butch. But, he says, that name is not exactly the name his grandfather used to call him when he was very young.

"I'm not sure why people call me Butch," he said, "but I imagine it has something to do with my grandfather, William High Kitchin, Sr.

"When I was a kid he used to talk baby talk to me and say something like Bougie, Bougie. No one knew how to say it or spell it. By the time I started school, people were calling me Butch. I never really liked the name Hugh; Bougie was sort of a cross between Hugh and Bougie, so the name stuck."

SUNshine Girl

Adcock enjoys writing poetry

Born in Soule, Korea, SUNshine Girl Kyoung Adcock is a two year Beach resident. She and her husband Sonny Adcock, a Beach financial consultant, live in the Indian Lakes section of Virginia Beach.

"I really like Virginia Beach," Kyoung said, "and I now have plans to stay indefinitely in this city. But I don't think I'd mind living in the country too much, if I had to."

"I like the convenience of Virginia Beach. I like it because it is a city not too big and not too small."

Busy at Christmas

Employed in a Virginia Beach department store, Kyoung says she enjoys being busy around Christmas.

"Christmas business is really picking up," she said, "and I think it's great! I enjoy working and being busy."

Kyoung lived in Korea for 24 years before she married and moved from her homeland.

"When I met Sonny," she said, "he was working for the American Embassy in Korea. I had finished school and was a nurse. I had been living in a big city, and it was different to come to America."

Beach the best

"But so far, Virginia Beach is the best place I've ever lived; including Blackstone, Va. and Washington, D.C."

Kyoung's hobbies include writing poetry. "I used to write them for the college newspaper," she said. She also considers nursing a hobby.

"I come from a medical family," Kyoung, with four sisters and three brothers, said, "and I love nursing. It's like a hobby."

Kyoung enjoys listening to Classical music. Her favorite Beach nightspots include Trixx and the Lighthouse.

Depression, delusions, audio hallucinations, withdrawal, prolonged irrational actions...these are all systems of Schizophrenia, according to Beach schizophrenes.

"Did you ever go into a room and begin banging your foot on the floor as hard as you can," asked a member of Schizophrenics Anonymous, (SA), a three year old Beach group which had been meeting in the Kempsville branch library, but now meets at the Beach House on Virginia Beach Boulevard. The Beach House is a rehabilitation center for Beach people with mental disorders.

"And the real problem is," Mr. D. continued, "is that you can't stop stomping your feet and you don't know why you're doing it."

The SA group has had four meetings at the House. Attendance has ranged from six to zero. Last Saturday, six Beach Schizophrenes met at the House with SA president Gene Ferrell.

"It's hard to have regular meetings with these people," Ferrell said, "sometimes they come and sometimes they do not."

"From what I've seen, however, for most of them, their biggest difficulty is trying to hold down a job."

"Many times Schizophrenes can't concentrate, and they suffer from Schizophrenic episodes. For this reason employers are reluctant to hire a known schizophrenic."

Many symptoms

Ferrell said Schizophrenia does not necessarily imply dual personalities.

"In addition to assuming the traits of different characters, which is not often the case," she said. "Many other disorders or illnesses are lumped under the heading of Schizophrenia."

SA member Mr. D. echoes Ferrell's comments. Other members of the group discussed SA, but wished not be named, as did Mr. D.

"People like us are different," Mr. D. said. "Most of us are on medication, and without it, we couldn't go on day to day. And if we can't go on, they put us in the hospital and keep giving us medication."

"And everything you can think of is put under the heading of Schizophrenia: Paranoid thoughts; hallucinations; withdrawal; depressions; radical personalities; incoherent speech; loss of sleep or appetite; anxiety; aggression; and others."

"With that many possible symptoms, no wonder there are 250,000 schizophrenes in the United States, or in other words, one out of every hundred."

Ms. H. said while its true that many people suffer from similar occurrences, for schizophrenes it is different.

"We can't handle it," she said, "we can't tell the difference between what is real and what is fantasy."

"And in addition to not understanding why you are the way you are, or why an episode occurs, it is also almost impossible to control the duration or severity of the episodes."

Episodes

Episodes may include the following:

"I had audio hallucinations at work," said Mr. D. "I was in one room and I heard about 30 people talking in the next room. Then, I didn't understand that there were no people in the room talking. Now I realize that I was just hallucinating."

"Another weird thing happened to me one time; I was doing push ups and got halfway up and stopped. I couldn't move for 30 minutes."

Mr. R. recalls this episode: "I was in Iceland last Summer. I needed sleep or I get weird thoughts. These guys had some dope with them. I got real paranoid and was going to take a crowbar to someone's head; but I didn't."

Mr. S. recalls: "I drove for 24 hours straight. I became disoriented. Eventually I stopped for gas, and went to this half-way house I know. I was 30 minutes early so I kicked the door in and went inside. The police came and took me to an institute."

Need participation

Most of the SA members agree that the community needs to be better educated about Schizophrenes, and the group needs more members.

Beach House supervisor Keith Johnson explains:

"We provide the SA group the facility," he said, "and they are welcomed here. The only other people who use the House now are our own members."

"But, for the SA group, they need more interaction, communication, and understanding on behalf of the community."

Soldiers in costume fired off three rounds as a tribute to America.

Beach writer publishes Country woman's book

By Bonnie Mattiko
Special to the Sun

Virginia Beach writer Louisa Venable Kyle, at age 77, has authored her fourth book "A Country Woman's Scrapbook."

This latest volume, published Dec. 1, 1980 contains recollections of her 55 years of country

Beach illustrator, also

living at her home, Edgewood, in the Tidewater area of Virginia.

Essays on the beauty and the joys of nature, advice on gardening and old-fashioned cooking-- including a number of recipes, reminiscences of bygone traditions like homemade ice cream parties and quilting bees are included in the book.

The title, "A Country Woman's Scrapbook," was taken from the title of Mrs. Kyle's newspaper column that appeared each Sunday in a local newspaper between 1952 and 1958. The book contains 52 of her columns, edited, revised, and organized into the cycle of the seasons, beginning with spring when she and her young family moved to Edgewood.

Accompanying each of the columns is a two-color sketch by Tidewater artist Chamie O'Brien Grandy.

Mrs. Grandy, 73, has been a long-time friend of the author and a frequent visitor to Edgewood. Mrs. Grandy also was commissioned to do four full-colored sketches which complement the division of the book into the four seasons of the year.

Mrs. Kyle was educated in Norfolk public and private schools, attended Mary Baldwin Seminary in Staunton for three years and majored in home economics at Lasell Seminary in Massachusetts. She was married in 1924 and moved with her husband and first daughter to Edgewood when she was 25.

She began her writing career fairly late in life, first appearing in The Virginian-Pilot as the result of a woman's club literary contest. That led to her weekly column and was followed by publication in other newspapers and magazines including The New York Times, Maryland Garden magazine, and Commonwealth, the magazine of Virginia.

She has written two regionally successful children's books, "Ram Lam" which is about a pet lamb who was raised at Edgewood, and "The Witch of Pungo," historical stories set in Tidewater. She is also the author of "My Virginia Childhood," an account of her youth. She is well-known as a lecturer and has made several television appearances in connection with her books.

Chamie O'Brien Grandy majored in art at Vassar and attended Parsons. She is well-known throughout the Tidewater region for her needlepoint designs and she was the illustrator for "Ram Lam."

Beacher Ramon W. Breeden installed as builders' head

By Lin Cooper,
Special to the Sun

Ramon W. Breeden, Jr., president of the Breeden Company of Virginia Beach, has been recently installed as the 1981 president of Tidewater Builders Association.

The ceremony took place at the annual President's Ball held at the New Cavalier Hotel in Virginia Beach. Second District Congressman G. William Whitehurst installed the new president and other officers and directors in the presence of more than 300 invited guests.

Breeden, who has been listed for the past five years by Professional Builder magazine as one of the top 500 builders nationally in terms of total volume, has served on the association's board of directors for the past six years.

Looking ahead

In looking ahead to 1981 Breeden called for cohesion and commitment from the industry to face the dual problems of high interest rates and inflation.

"At present," Breeden commented, "high construction rates and high interest rates are exerting a significant drag on the economy, most particularly in the construction industry sector. Unfortunately, neither force shows signs of diminishing."

Let us hope the new administration in Washington will tackle these problems prudently and in haste in order that the improvement in the economy that had started and then stalled may once again continue."

The Breeden Company, with a current $20 million annual business volume, grew out of the mortgage banking organization of the same name founded by Breeden in the 1960s. Since 1965 the Company has built more than 1400 homes and apartments in the Tidewater area, and since 1976 it has specialized in the development, construction and leasing of shopping centers in the Richmond and Tidewater areas.

161 Beach students at convention

On hundred sixty-one Latin students from seven Virginia Beach junior and senior high schools recently attended the state convention of the Junior Classical League in Roanoke.

The Virginia Junior Classical League, like its national organization, is pledged to create and enhance Latin students' interest in the classics. During the convention, the Virginia Beach Latin students competed in various scholastic, arts and crafts, costume, and oratory contests. The Virginia Beach delegation swept 28 first through fifth place awards in the contests.

Cox High, which sent the largest delegation (57 students) to the convention, captured 18 awards; Bayside High had nine; and Kempville High had one. Other schools sending convention delegations were First Colonial, Green Run, and Kellam high schools, and Kempville Junior High.

More than 1,900 students attended the convention, which also featured a Roman banquet where the students dressed in togas, a "Mr. Rome" contest, and elections for the league's state officers.

Placides and Hope

1980 Christmas Seal artist Roberta Placides from Virginia Beach joins forces with Christmas Seal Chairman, Bob Hope in Washington, D.C., at the kickoff of the campaign which supports the work of the Virginia Lung Association in its fight against lung disease. Roberta's design was chosen over other entries as the Virginia Christmas Seal. Twenty four young Christmas Seal artists from across the country attended the event. There are 54 Christmas Seal paintings—one from each state, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Guam. The original paintings are all on display at the Children's Hospital Medical Center in the nation's capital throughout the holiday season. Sheets of the 1980 Christmas Seals were sent to some 60 million American homes.

City Council News

Action pending

Water, sewer rates could go up $2

By Lee Cahill
Sun City Council correspondent

Virginia Beach City Council has put off increasing the water and sewer rates but only until after next Tuesday's sale of $17.5 million in general obligation bonds under the city's annual borrowing authority.

These bonds, while they have no connection with the water and sewer bond referendum, may give council an idea of what to expect when the water and sewer bonds are sold next Spring.

Monday afternoon Council deferred until after the bond sale action on ordinances which would increase the monthly sewage payment for single-family residences from $5 to $7 with similar increases in all categories and would increase the water rates from $1.06 per 1,000 gallons to $1.31 per 1,000 gallons.

Of the 25-cent water increase and $2-a-month sewer increase recommended in the rate study of consultants Buck Seifert and Jost, $1.016 of the water fee and $.55 of the sewer fee is directly attributable to the first installment of $20 million of the $46 million referendum approved on Nov. 4.

The rest is needed, according to the study, to keep the Public Utilities Department solvent. Factors considered are inflation, lower revenues resulting from drought-induced lower usage, and the possible increase in the wholesale price of water.

City manager George L. Hanbury pointed out that the Utilities Department budget for the current fiscal year was allocated only a two percent increase in a $12 million budget. He said there was a need for a rate increase even if the bonds were not approved.

There was some disagreement in Council over whether the part of the increase directly attributable to the bond issue should be delayed until after the actual bond sale in March or April. Hanbury had proposed the entire increase be effective Jan. 1, 1981.

Councilman Donald Merrick said that in promoting the bond issue he told the people that the city would have a 20-cent water rate increase in January and that if the bonds were approved there would be another increase in April or May when the city sold the first $20 million in bonds.

When the city issues bond anticipation notes it will still have to pay interest, Councilman Reid Ervin pointed out. Hanbury added that the city has already sold anticipation notes for $5.3 million of $9.1 million in revenue bonds which is included in the first $20 million. The bonds will have to be sold in March to pay for the notes, he said.

"If you want to do it all at once," Merrick replied, "be my guest and I'll never serve on another committee!"

A. J. Chewning, who has served on the city's water and sewer committees, maintained that the people still do not understand which portions of the rate increases are for the bond issue and which are to meet other expenses. Inflation, he said, apparently accounts for the largest part of the increase.

Chewning suggested Council delay action on the increases and to answer the people's questions before they ask. "That's the way to keep the faith."

Chewning also believes that the people may have understood that the increase would not be all at once but over a three or four year period. The proposed increases, however, will take care of utilities only until July 1, 1982 when another rate will probably be necessary. "They'll say you lied to them," Chewning said.

Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. said that when promoting the bond issue he told the people that the water rate would be increased to $1.26 on July 1, and to $1.31 if the bonds were approved, and that the sewer rate would be increased from $6.45 and to $7 if the bond issue were approved.

Hanbury pointed out that the city was incurring expenses in connection with the bond issue even though the sale would not be held until the spring, but that if Council wished it could hold off the increases of 10 cents on water and 55 cents on sewer.

Ervin added that the rate might have to be increased again to pay for Virginia Beach's share in Norfolk's drought relief programs.

Vivian Hitchcock said she questioned the referendum from the beginning and especially using tax money for ads promoting the referendum. She said she was waiting an opinion from Richmond on the legality of using tax funds for this purpose. "The people were misled," she claimed.

Hanbury said there was no intent to mislead the people and suggested the matter be deferred for a week to see if there were any effect from the sale of $17.5 million in bond anticipation notes to change matters.

Councilwoman Reba McClanan asked for additional information on where the Utilities Department stands.

Distressed, I cried in shame,
"Lord Christ, who loves the world
Teach me to learn to love

Pavilion owner to test

Councilman Patrick L. Standing was concerned about the inconvenience of rate hikes scheduled several months apart on businesses which budget expenditures.

Ervin said that he didn't want to mislead the public one iota but that "we're going to have to address (the Utilities Department's) needs whether we like it or not. The drought and higher interest rates have added new parameters." He then suggested holding up auction until Dec. 16 to see what the bond market was like.

Hanbury said that he would have the debt retirement and increases necessary figured out at various interest rates so that Council could be prepared to make a decision.

Sam Houston, president of the Southeastern Virginia Area-wide Model Program for Seniors (SEVAMP) and a member of the Mayor's Committee on Aging asked that council to consider giving senior citizens and the handicapped an exemption on utilities rates. At present the city offers senior citizens and the disabled a break on line and tap fees only.

Hanbury said that the proposed rate ordinance, which establishes a flat usage rate with no minimum and no break for heavier users, should help some of the people. They will be charged only for what they use, he said.

Standing noted that if the city were making money on its utilities, he would consider it a good idea, but by giving senior citizens and the disabled a break, the burden would be placed on the rest of the citizens.

David Bartholomew asked Council how it could justify the imposition of a $2 increase on sewer maintenance rates on new sewers. Bartholomew, who was forced to accept city sewage lines in his neighborhood when it was declared a health hazard, is still smarting over having to pay $990 for the line fees when some of his neighbors paid as little as $440. People who signed earlier contracts with the city were given lower rates.

Pavilion Towers

The developer of the proposed 34-story Pavilion Towers is free to make test borings or any other calculations on the property, his attorney Grover Wright was told Monday afternoon.

Wright complained to Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon that a resolution approved by Council Nov. 24 denies his client the right to make test borings.

Wright

Wright said that he was not going to ask for any action on the building permit until after the Federation Aviation Administration makes its decision on whether the construction would represent a hazard to the Oceana Naval Air Station. He added, however, that the resolution prevents the developer, Edward S. Garcia, from going on the property and making test borings. "We can't get any sort of permit."

City manager George L. Hanbury said that Council has indicated that only the final building permit will be denied and that the developer was free to make test borings.

"I will ask no action on building permit until after FAA decision"
—Wright

The resolutions states that the city shall not issue a building permit or site plan approval or any other approval until final rulings are made by the FAA.

The resolution also points out that initial findings of the FAA indicate that the proposed construction does represent a hazard. The Navy objected to the construction.

Christopher development

The Christopher development Company will be permitted to develop a 191.9-acre parcel in Kempsville as an open space promotion district but will not be allowed to satisfy open space requirements with a 100-acre lake.

City Council Monday afternoon approved a conditional use permit for the open space promotion concept, which permits a developer more flexibility in determining the size of individual lots under existing zoning. The overall density remains the same, however, and the developer is required to set aside 15 percent of the total acreage as open space.

Council also approved a change of zoning on three acres of the site from R-5 Residential District to O-1 Office District.

The site is located on the south side of Indian River Road, west of Kempsville Road. The company also developed Lake Christopher on the north side of Kempsville Road.

Douglas Talbot, of Talbot and Associates, consulting engineers for Christopher, told Council that the development will be centered around the lake, the E. V. Williams borrow pit, which he thought could be used to satisfy at least part of the open space requirements. He said that single-family homes around the lake would be in the $90,000 to $120,000 price range and lot sizes in some cases will be larger than the zoning requires.

Council concurred with the Planning Commission recommendation to approve the open space promotion permit but added the conditions that 15 percent of the total acreage must be set aside as permanent open space and that no portion of the proposed lake is to be dedicated to the city or be considered as satisfying the open space requirements. Talbot said the lake will be turned over to the home owners association.

In another zoning action, Council denied by a vote of 6 - 5 an application for a conditional use permit by Stanley and Pamela K. Jones for single-family dwellings in the AG-1 Agricultural District on a 20.23 acre parcel on the west side of Sandbridge Road, north of Colechester Road.

The applicants planned to divide the site into four homesites and to construct a road leading to the sites from Sandbridge Road.

The Comprehensive Plan calls for the area to be retained as agricultural land.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley based her objections on that fact that a road would have to be built within the property. She maintained residential construction is generally permitted in AG-1 districts so long as the access is limited to existing road frontage.

Councilman Clarence Holland pointed out, however, that the site backed up to property which is being developed as a golf course and residential development.

The property is within the 100-year flood plan. Voting against denial were Vice Mayor Harold Heischouer, Councilmen W. H. Kitchin III, Holland, Patrick L. Standing and Mayor J. Henry McCoy, Jr.

Council also approved a variance requested by the Barnes Property Investment Group in minimum pavement widths for a parcel at the corner of Princess Anne Road and West Neck Roads. The applicant plans to develop the land into four lots. Henley said the application differed from the previous one in that the plan meets requirements on an existing road.

Fuel payments

Fuel assistance payments will be available in Virginia Beach this winter.

City Council Monday afternoon appropriated $59,149 to pay for the administration costs of the program of which $10,830 is the local contribution and the remainder will be paid for by the State.

Last year the city received an allocation of over $69,000 for the program. This year, the State will make the allocations directly administration of the program.

Beach smaller

It was a neck to neck finish, but the City of Norfolk kept its lead. Virginia Beach Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. told City Council at an informal session Monday afternoon that the Bureau of Census lists Virginia Beach's population at 260,680, still 2,000 behind Norfolk.

MOTION FOR

JUDGMENT

Plaintiff, City of Virginia Beach Development Authority (the "Authority"), seeks judicial determination pursuant to Article 6, Chapter 5, Title 15.1 of the Code of Virginia of 1950, as amended, of the validity of approximately $10,000,000 Industrial Development Revenue Bonds (the "Bonds"), for the benefit of EBAR Associates ("EBAR") to be issued to construct and equip retail shopping facilities, restaurants, movie theatres and office buildings and all necessary related improvements to be located between Oceana West Industrial

James Ricketts accepts the Pavilion challenge

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun editor

What type of man does it take to manage Virginia Beach's $20 million arts and convention facility, the Pavilion?

A man like James B. Ricketts.

Ricketts is the 40 year old son of a Naval captain; an eight year Beach resident; and a superb athlete. He has a degree in physical education from Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, and is a graduate of the Navy's Officer's Training School. His business background stems back to 1964 when he served as chief dispensing officer for the U.S.S. Montrail, a transport ship with a crew of 600.

Subsequently, Ricketts toured Europe, and lived three years in Japan. He moved to Virginia Beach in 1974, employed as the city's tourist director, with offices in the Virginia Beach Dome. Now he works in the Pavilion, situated in large modern offices which overlook the centers' football field sized convention floor.

Last week Ricketts sat down with the Sun to discuss his personal background, and how he attained the position he has today.

SUN: Where were you born, and what are some of the details surrounding your early childhood?

RICKETTS: I was born in Honolulu, Hawaii, but only lived there a short time. My father, Claude V. Ricketts, was stationed aboard the U.S.S. West Virginia, in Pearl Harbor. But my father, as well as many others, was worried about a Japanese attack of the harbor and sent my family to San Diego, California.

My mother, Margery, and brother Myron left my father in Pearl Harbor only two months before it was attacked.

SUN: Was your father injured during the assault?

RICKETTS: No; but he was cited for heroics.

The West Virginia was bombed while my father was on it. His rank was lieutenant then and he was a damage control officer. That meant he was responsible for figuring out what to do in case the ship was impeded or bombed. My father, in an effort to keep the ship from turning over and trapping sailors underneath, decided to counter flood the ship to stabilize it.

The captain had been mortally wounded. My father carried him up to the bridge, which was above the water line but near roaring flames. A nearby fireboat spotted them and threw them a line to safety. My father was not injured, but the captain died. Over the next five years my father spend a lot of time on the Islands, and our family saw little of him.

SUN: Please trace your education from elementary through high school, including academics and athletics.

RICKETTS: After the war we moved to Newport, Rhode Island. I attended Newport Elementary School, grades one through three. During this time my father was an instructor at the local war college. It snowed plenty up there and schools never closed. My brother and I would build tunnels in the snow and go sledding on the hills.

I spent my fourth grade year in Los Angeles. My father had been transferred again, and I found myself enrolled in Mount Washington Elementary School.

L. A. was beautiful at night. Our house was on a hill that overlooked the city. Some nights we'd spend most of the time observing the stars; other nights, we'd just stare out over the City of Lights; it was like an ocean of lights for as far as the eye could see.

Then, it was back to the East Coast for my fifth and sixth grade years. I attended Norview Elementary School in Norfolk. It was about now that I first became interested in athletics. I was tall for my age, at 5'11" and played center on the basketball team. I played first base for the baseball team.

My father was transferred next to the Pentagon, and I spent the seventh and eighth grades in Falls Church, Virginia, at George Mason High School. They were good years there. I was playing sports and meeting girls. But before I could graduate from Mason my father took the family to Long Beach, California, and I spent the ninth grade at Long Beach Junior High School. My grades were good there and I was still playing ball.

Finally, we went back to Fall's Church, and I graduated high school in 1958. I had lettered in basketball and baseball. I had aspirations to be a professional athlete, but a knee injury in my junior year put those thoughts out of my mind. I stayed active, however, as president of the Hi-Y and the Varsity Clubs. I served as class officer and on special committees. I used to lifeguard in Virginia Beach over the Summers.

SUN: How good were your chances of becoming a professional ball player?

Jim and Todd

RICKETTS: I wanted to be one; but I knew that my injury had hurt me. I still played baseball and was being scouted by the major leagues. But, in the back of my mind, I think my goal all along was to enroll in the Naval Academy, like my father. But even those hopes were dashed because of my knee, and the unfortunate fact that I'm colorblind.

SUN: Where did you go to college?

RICKETTS: I began at American University, in

"I had aspirations to be a professional athlete, but a knee injury put those thoughts out of my mind"—Ricketts

D.C. it was a good school and it had an excellent basketball team. But I didn't have a scholarship, and the only reason I decided to go there was because my high school coach knew people there. My grades went down and I was living at home. It was decided that I needed tutoring in English, and studied extra for six months. We had friends of the family who recommend that I should look into Luther College, in Iowa.

I ended up getting my degree in physical education in 1963. I thought about my master's degree and coaching, but the first semester of my senior year I talked to a naval recruiter about applying for officer's training school, in Newport. My knee was stronger now so I figured I'd give that a try. It's really what I wanted to do anyway. Is till played sports at Luther, lettering two years in baseball.

SUN: Were you accepted into OTS?

RICKETTS: Yes, but only after I brought a note from my doctor attesting to the fact that my knee should be strong enough for military duty. I was accepted as a military candidate, but I regret not being able to be a line officer, not being able to take command of a ship. But due to my eyes and my knee, I had to be content as a supply corps officer.

SUN: What was officers' training school like?

RICKETTS: It was rough, and concentrated. It was like taking military and academic cram courses. I was a little uncertain of the unknown, but it all proved very interesting.

Training school was regimented and strict. The only time we were let off the grounds was from 4 p.m. Saturday to 6 p.m. Sundays. It was one night on the town, and we painted it red. We'd go to bars, meet girls and dance. All the candidates received $15 a week which was supposed to go to pay cleaning and entertainment bills.

SUN: After graduation where were you first stationed?

RICKETTS: In Norfolk, as the disbursing officer for the U.S.S. Montrail. For three years I handled all the ships' payroll, and bills, I ran the Ship's store; and the general merchandising and food services departments. I had learned it all, in training school but it works differently in practice than on paper. But, in essence, I was receiving the business experience that would carry me through later in life.

SUN: What foreign countries did you visit?

RICKETTS: England, France, Spain, Portugal, Norway, Greece, South Africa, and Italy.

I saw much poverty in Naples, Italy. I've never seen anything like it. It was filthy. People would dump trash in the Mediterranean Sea; others would pick it out.

The most beautiful place I saw was Majorca, Spain. It's an island off Spain's coast and is a melting pot for worldwide travelers. It had a semi-tropical climate, and cheap prices. Rum and coles were only 15¢ each. I even met this Spanish girl at a reception the local athletic club had sponsored for us. She couldn't speak a word of English, but we went out on a date the next night and had a great time.

South Africa was interesting. We performed a landing exercise off its coast one day. It's a very desolate place.

After the Montrail I was transferred to Commander Naval Air Force Atlantic, Naval Air Station, Norfolk to do more accounting and budget work for military bases east of the Mississippi River to the Mediterranean Sea. It was a lot more responsibility, but I don't mind telling you that I was getting tired of pushing a pencil while sitting behind a desk all day.

SUN: Why didn't you quit the Navy?

RICKETTS: Eventually I did! I had gotten married and needed a job, but accounting for a million dollar budget lost its thrill after awhile. I took one more tour of duty before I resigned, this time to Japan; and I'm sure glad I did. It was perhaps the best three years of my entire life.

SUN: What was it about Japan that you liked so much?

RICKETTS: Japan was where my first child was born, and I spent three very happy years there. When I first arrived there my wife wasn't with me. She was a teacher back in the States. I remember taking a taxi to the base for the first time. The people were different; the cities were different; and the traffic was wild! I sat there thinking to myself, 'my God, what am I doing here? What have I done?' But that all changed.

Soon my wife came over, and nine months later Todd was born. But in addition to the pleasure that I received from my family, I also received much enjoyment from the Japanese people.

I made it a point to get out and go into the local residents' homes. I visited the Mainland of China, as well as its surrounding islands. With the help of a large contingency of Japanese on the base that spoke American, gaining access to their culture was not difficult.

I learned a lot of landscaping techniques from them. They're masters of it and take much pride in their work. The Japanese were going through changes when I was there. I mean, it had to be difficult for people to survive when nine-tenths of Japan's population lived on one-tenth of the land area. We came back to America in 1972; that's when I resigned.

"The Pavilion is working fine. If we continue at the rate we're going, we'll reach out 1984 expectations by 1982"—Ricketts

SUN: Did your wife have anything to do with your resignation?

RICKETTS: No, not really. She wanted to come back to the U.S., but she never said anything about my job. I was making about $13,000 a year then. But, I think we both sensed a change in me.

I had to make a tough decision: Whether to leave the security of a government job or stay in and retire. I had been serving for eight years. I could retire in 12 more; I would have been 42 years old.

I didn't know what I wanted to do. All I did know was that I had confidence in myself, and in my ability to start a new career. My dad had just died, and my mother bought a house in Virginia Beach. After I quit the Navy we moved to the Beach also. I decided that it was time to get the knee operation that I had been putting off.

I received surgery from a doctor in D.C., a friend of my brother's wife. He was a good doctor, but I had complications. I got a stiff leg and was semi-laid up from Oct., 1974 to Feb., 1975.

I spent time convalescing with my family and friends in Roanoke Rapids, N.C. I had plenty of time then to think about what I wanted to do with my life.

I started to prepare resumes and making lists of jobs in Virginia Beach that I wanted to apply for. I couldn't get a job then with the City of Virginia Beach, but I did get one with the Virginia Port Authority, Norfolk. I stayed with them for two years.

SUN: What was your job like with the Authority?

RICKETTS: It was good. It was where I really got my first good experience with the tourist business. I booked cruises, and did press relations work. I met people, and sold package trips. I took care of other operations, and general management duties. I was really learning the travel industry, and one day I received a call from a friend about a tourist related job at the Beach.

I called Jim DeBellis for an interview, and was hired as the Beach's tourist development co-ordinator in 1974. At that time I supervised tourist advertising and promotions at the Dome and at Rudee Inlet.

SUN: Were you planning then on the Pavilion being built?

RICKETTS: Yes. Jim told me convention center studies had been found dating back to 1968. This excited me because the Beach needed one, and I hoped I would be around to see it get started.

Actually, I came to the Beach with two goals in mind: First, to lengthen the tourist season from three to nine months. Virginia Beach is a fine product to sell; whereas Norfolk was a defensive sell. The Beach is exciting, and unique. I could see much more potential in its tourist industry. And secondly, to help build and plan for a convention center here.

SUN: What was one of the first things you did to help the tourist season at the Beach?

RICKETTS: In 1975 we took a hard look at why there wasn't much economic growth in the Falls. A decision was made then to channel 40% of the Beach's promotions budget into Fall promotions. And I'm happy to report that from 1975 until now the tourist business over the fall has increased 200%. We know that 65% of our tourist business is from June to August. We want to have bookings from March through November. December, January, and February are the worst months.

SUN: How soon could Beach innkeepers expect a nine month season?

RICKETTS: I think Virginia Beach has an excellent chance of having a nine month tourist season. How soon? I'm not sure. But I'm glad that I have the opportunity to take on the challenge of trying to make it that way.

SUN: What's it like to manage a $20 million facility?

RICKETTS: Running the Pavilion has the problems inherent in running any new controversial facility. There's apprehension; and excitement. Speculation, and opinion. People continue to ask if it's really worth the money? Is it a tax burden to the Beach's taxpayers?

But actually, the Pavilion is doing fine; it's working well, even better than planned. If we continue at the rate we're going, we'll reach our 1984 expectations by 1982.

SUN: What is the biggest challenge facing you and the Pavilion?

RICKETTS: Providing the same devotion to detail, and personal attention in the much larger Pavilion as we provided in the Dome.

We were afraid that because of its size, even with a staff of 25 we would not be able to provide the same service during functions as we did with a staff of 15 at the Dome. But, from the reports I've received, we are still maintaining very high marks in that category. We continue to get compliments on service.

SUN: When will the theatre be opened?

RICKETTS: We expect to complete the theatre by late January, 1981. Shows should begin in March along with formal opening ceremonies for the Pavilion which should last up to 10 days.

SUN: When you're not working what do you do?

RICKETTS: There's very little time that I'm not working. most of my spare time is spent with my son

Todd. He's 11 now, and he and I play sports together. I don't have the time to play golf anymore. And, unfortunately, there's not much landscaping I can do around my home near London Bridge.

My favorite past time, however, is bumming around on the Beach; I do it as much as I can. It's the best form of relaxation that I know.

SUN: Do you have plans to leave Virginia Beach?

RICKETTS: No. I think there is still much that can be done in Virginia Beach; I love Virginia Beach and I am dedicated to its well being. But, if I ever do decide to move on, I feel that the experiences I have gained here will be beneficial to me in practically any other job in the same field across America.

Beacher Baldwin paces hockey team

Beach resident Jenny Baldwin and her Mary Washington College field hockey teammates closed their most successful season ever recently.

Jenny, a Beach native and a sophomore at the Fredericksburg school, participated in her second season of collegiate hockey as her team rolled to MWC records in wins (14), goals (53), shots (253), and shutouts (11).

The Blue Tide team turned a fifth place Virginia finish into their first regional berth, and, in turn, their first national tournament berth. The group finally finished their longest season ranked ninth among the 163 Division III teams nation-wide.

P.A. grad

Jenny, a graduate of Princess Anne High School, "is enthusiastic and energetic on the field or on the bench," her coach, Meg Kintzing, said. "She is great as sprinting and covering short distances quickly," Kintzing continued. "Next year, with two years of experience as a link, I expect her to be a key to our forward line."

A soccer player in High School, Jenny is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Baldwin of Virginia Beach.

Free publications

Beach residents learn clean air

Virginia Beach dwellers and commuters concerned about air pollution and improved transportation in their cities will find up-to-date help and information in a free publication produced by the National Wildlife Federation for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

"A Citizen's Guide to Clean Air and Transportation" is designed to get Beach residents involved in helping their cities reach three important goals for the 80's: clean air, efficient use of federal transportation funds, and cultural and economic revitalization.

"Is it possible to cut our transportation energy use per capita in half while maintaining our standard of living? Can we clean up the air and maintain high levels of mobility? Will downtown areas again bustle with nightlife and commercial activity? If our cities are to be saved, these are the challenges we face," notes the citizen's guide, which was written by David Burwell and Christopher Meyer, transportation specialists with the NWF, the nation's largest conservation education organization.

Hayes fired up over Pungo burglary

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun editor

"I'm offering $2,000 in reward money," said Pungo resident Bernie Hayes, "for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those who have burglarized and vandalized my property."

Hayes, a 26 year Beach resident, recently had his home broken into and suffered losses totaling $6,265.

"I know you can't trust people now," Hayes said, "especially during the holiday season and with the economic situation the way it is."

Merchandise stolen from Hayes' home located near the Pungo Ferry Marina, and its value, included: One, 3 1/2 carat diamond cluster men's ring, $3,500; one diamond ring, almost two carats, $1,000; two gold chains, $400; one gold class ring, $200; one, model 29 presentation .44 Magnum, Smith and Wesson, $450;

one .44 special blue steel revolver, $200; one colt .357 Magnum, blue steel python, $300; one model "64" Smith and Wesson, $250; one gun permit, no value; and $15 in silver coins.

Investigating Virginia Beach Detective J. R. Elliott explained how the burglary occurred this way:

"On Dec. 10, an unknown person or persons entered the rear door of the house by prying it open with an unknown type of tool.

"The bedroom was ransacked and the gun cabinet entered. No other damage or rummaging occurred in any other parts of the house. Victim stated that he had no insurance on the house or belongings."

Insured now

"Everyone kept asking me why I didn't have insurance," Hayes said.

"Usually where I lived the dockmaster watched over my house, but I had thought about insurance off and on but never got it; then, there you go, and you've lost property.

Hayes' recent loss is not the first time his property has been either damaged or stolen.

"Last July 10," he said, "someone broke in behind my shop in Creeds, applied lacquer thinner to my $10,000 Donzi boat and ignited it. They also tried to burn my building."

Pungo hot and cold

Hayes says crime in Pungo has its hot and cold spells.

"Generally it's pretty quiet around here," he said, "then we'll have problems for a few weeks at a time. Some people near me have had their homes broken into during broad daylight.

"I have a passion for nice guns and people know it. I have a feeling that whoever took mine knew where they were and went right to them. They had to have been in my house before the burglary."

Hayes says he won't call names but could suggest suspects.

"There's a lot of thieves around here," he said, "mostly kids who don't work but spend most of their time fishing."

Neighborhood watch

Detective Elliott said the key to preventing crime in rural sections of the city, such as Pungo, is better communication between residents.

"The local residents have to watch after each others' property," he said, "and call the police immediately if they see anything or anyone suspicious around anyone's house.

"Local residents should try to keep their homes as secure as possible, and have insurance if they hope to get back any insurance money for the stolen property."

Hayes can be reached at 426-2126; Elliott at 427-4104.

Direct laws at violent criminals

Gun laws could not have prevented Lennon's death

Editor:

While contemplating the sad death of musician John Lennon, Virginia Beach residents should realize that no "gun control" law, no amount of restrictive firearms legislation, could have prevented this tragic act.

Gun laws simply cannot stop someone who is intent upon committing murder. The suspect charged with Mr. Lennon's murder purchased the murder weapon in Hawaii, a state which requires that all firearms and ammunition be registered with local and state authorities. The crime took place in New York City which has perhaps the most stringent gun laws in the country. New York not only requires registration and permits for handguns, but also requires the licensing of firearms owners. These restrictive gun laws did not stop Mr. Lennon's murder. Additional gun laws would not have stopped it, either.

The act, for whatever reason it was committed, was premeditated. Once he is bent upon such a crime, a person cannot be thwarted by an existing gun law, nor by the passage of any additional legislation. Murder is already against the law.

There will be those who call for more "gun control" laws. Such laws, however, only restrict the law-abiding citizen's use of firearms and will not affect the criminal or reduce crime. Such laws merely open the door for civil rights violations which have occurred many times under the Federal Gun Control Act of 1968. These violations have already resulted in 63 United States Senators calling for reform of that gun law.

To stop crime, laws must be directed at the violent criminal. The National Rifle Association has long been in favor of prompt and adequate punishment for anyone convicted of a crime of violence. Take the criminal off the streets. Force the criminal justice system to be as severe as necessary to compel the criminal to realize that he will suffer the consequences of his actions. This is the way to stop such deplorable tragedies.

Harlon B. Carter,
executive vice president,
National Rifle Association of America

Vets say thank you

Editor:

The Disabled American Veterans of Tidewater as well as the Veterans Advisory Committee cannot thank you enough for your fine support and major contribution that made Veterans Day a very memorable day for the entire Tidewater community. Without the unselfish support of folks like you and organizations such as yours, it would be most difficult for us to keep the true meaning of patriotism alive, and the spirit and heritage of America in this country certainly could not survive.

It is most gratifying, especially in the turmoil the world is in today, to report to you that we had the finest showing of patriotism and dedication as well as numbers of people who came out in full force to support this very meaningful Veterans Day program. This past Veterans Day had a very special meaning to many, many people, and the hard work and dedication by the many people involved was indeed a true showing that patriotism is still alive and well in this great country that we have today and that the many sacrifices that have been made down through the years have not been, and will not be, forgotten.

In the past, we talked about hundreds of people turning out, but this program turned out thousands of participants as well as members of the public, and we were most impressed with the number of young people who participated with us. I believe this spirit of patriotism and sacrifices is starting to indelibly mark the young of our country, and if this is so, the great heritage that certainly belongs to our young in this great country will never die.

Thank you for your most generous contribution to our success and have a great day, fellow American!

C. H. Gaudreau
Committee Chairman

Virginia Beach cancer unit seeking local residents help

Editor:

The Virginia Beach unit of the American Cancer Society is currently seeking volunteers to assist in serving the citizens of our city.

The society does a tremendous amount of community service for our residents. We are involved in direct patient assistance, patient and public education and professional education. All of these efforts are supported by our fund raising efforts.

We have a place for anyone to work regardless of their interest. We are seeking volunteers to become involved in all of our efforts. If a person does not feel comfortable with direct patient involvement, we have another area in which he or she can assist.

Our public education is in dire need for speakers to assist an expansion of this program.

John Collins
President

New center set for Beach hospital

By Babs Neumann
Special to the Sun

The construction of a Health Education and Activities Center has begun at General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

The new building will cost approximately $200,000 and will provide meeting space for 200-300 people. The hospital's Auxiliary has pledged $50,000 to project, most of which will be raised at the Annual Auction Buffet in January, 1981.

Open, 1981

The new facility, slated to open Summer 1981, will offer a large meeting area for health education programs for the community. Increasing participation by the hospital in education programs was a major factor in building the center. "Through the new facility," W. Earl Willis, Vice President and Administrator of General Hospital remarked, "the hospital hopes to become the hub of health education for the city of Virginia Beach."

Planned expansion of the Physical Therapy Department was another contributing factor. The current conference room in the hospital will be remodeled to accommodate the increasing usage of the Physical Therapy Department. Reflecting on the importance of the new center, Mr. Willis said, "The addition of the Health Education and Activities Center will enable General Hospital to step forward as a health educator, as well as health service provider for the Beach community."

Cleaves has served three terms (12 years). Appointments are now limited to two terms or eight years, whichever is greater.

Batten, a resident of 6313 Colby Way, is employed by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company. ### Ugly boulevard

Virginia Beach Boulevard may not be a scenic boulevard, but it isn't one of the ugliest—yet.

That time may come soon, however, if the city continues to permit additional billboard advertising, according to B. H. Bridges Jr., president of Virginia Beach Beautiful Commission. He told Council Monday afternoon that Little Creek Boulevard in Norfolk 15 years ago was depicted in an architectural magazine as one of the ugliest streets in the nation. "Virginia Beach Boulevard is not scenic, but it's getting close to being as ugly," Bridges said.

Council had before it an application for a use permit for a billboard on a .32 acre parcel on the south side of Virginia Beach Boulevard, west of Kentucky Avenue, in the Kempsville Borough. Council approved the petition for a eight-by-12-foot billboard, but instructed city manager George L. Hanbury to study the possibility of adding the Boulevard to the city's list of streets with strict billboard limitations.

Councilman Reid Ervin said the "time has come to stop the proliferation of Virginia Beach Boulevard."

The application before Council, filed by Helen L. Foos, was previously denied by council when a motion for approval failed for want of a second. The applicant sued and the Circuit Court remanded the application to Council for further consideration.

Frank Butler, attorney for Mrs. Foos, said the court found that general opposition is not adequate grounds for denying the application. He said the Boulevard is not a scenic highway, and that all other aspects were favorable for the requested use. Mrs. Foos, he said, wanted to advertise a judo school she owned on Laskin Road.

Opposition to the application, Butler said, was to a sign of any type.

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said Council needed some sort of policy to guide it in making this type decision.

City attorney Dale Bimson said that the court's decision also directed that Council should have some guidance and not have to resort to picking and choosing.

Council approved the permit for two years. In the meantime, city manager George L. Hanbury said he would review the billboard ordinance with a view toward including Virginia Beach Boulevard and other streets among the restricted areas.

Councilman John A. Baum suggested that the city's conditional use provisions also be reviewed. Councilman Donald Merrick also agreed saying, "Every time we deny a conditional use we end up in court."

Noise disclosures

The developer of a piece of property in the high noise zone for the Naval Air Station, Oceana, will make disclosure statements of the noise to prospective residents.

Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon approved the application of Resort Developments for a change of zoning for the parcel from R-7 Residential District to A-3 Apartment District on a .5 acre piece and from A-1 Apartment District to A-2 Apartment District on a 2.7 acre piece located on the west side of Indian Avenue south of Norfolk Avenue. The applicant had requested higher density A-3 zoning.

Although the property is recommended in the City's Comprehensive plan suitable for apartments at a density of 18 dwelling units per acre, the area was not located by the Navy in noise zone three at the time the Plan was drawn.

The Navy objected to rezoning which would result in increased density.

City manager George L. Hanbury said the Navy has expanded Noise Zone 3, the high noise zone, since the plan was drawn.

Councilman John A. Baum questioned the Navy's right to restrict the people's property rights.

Councilman Reid Ervin pointed out that "we restrict property rights everytime we plan." He said the city has some responsibility, to protect the health and safety of the people.

Baum explained he didn't think local government has the right to restrict people's property rights.

Ervin agreed that the Navy should have badgered Congress earlier for funds to purchase air rights.

Disclosure statements were made a condition of the rezoning.

Council also approved an application of John M. T. Mamoudis for a change of zoning from R-7 Residential District to A-2 Apartment District on a .46 acre parcel on the east side of Arctic Avenue, south of Norfolk Avenue.

The developer who had applied for A-3 zoning, had requested the rezoning to permit him to build townhouse rather than four duplexes on the site.

By a vote of 9-2, Council approved an application of George A. and Marjorie S. Crump for a change of zoning from R-8 Residential District to A-1 Apartment District on a 16.3-acre parcel at the southwest intersection of Ewell Road and Baxter Road in the Kempsville Borough. Existing zoning allows 98 units while the proposed zoning would allow 196 apartment units.

Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr., and Councilman Clarence A. Holland voted against the application. The Comprehensive Plan finds the site suitable for multiple-family development.

More TCC

Virginia Beach City Council is backing construction of an additional instructional facility of 78,142 square feet on the Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College.

A resolution supporting the expansion of the campus was approved by Council Monday afternoon and forwarded to the city's representatives to the Virginia General Assembly.

The facility, which would provide new laboratory and classroom space and cost an estimated $6,512,532 in state funds, has been recommended to the 1981 General Assembly.

The Beach Campus was started in temporary buildings at Camp Pendleton in 1971 with 753 students enrolled. The permanent campus, containing 106,895 square feet of space, opened in 1974 with 8,567 students. TCC president Dr. George Pass told Council the school now has 8500 students enrolled in 50 programs. In addition to the four permanent buildings, the college utilizes 10 portable buildings three high schools and barracks at Pendleton.

The campus is located on 117 acres of land donated by the city.

Respite care

Awards from two state agencies will make it possible for Virginia Beach to establish a respite care program (a day care service) for the elderly.

City Council Monday afternoon appropriated the necessary funds; $8,384 from the Southeastern Virginia Area-wide Model Program (SEVAMP) for the day care program, and $10,697 from the Department of Health to provide the basic health services for elderly individuals who can be cared for in their homes.

The program will serve approximately 45 persons, according to Sam Houston, a member of the SEVAMP committee.

Emotionally handicapped

The City of Virginia Beach has requested funds to carry a special program for the emotionally handicapped students in the city's public school system beyond this year.

City manager George L. Hanbury said told City Council Monday afternoon that the program, which offers specialized mental health clinical treatment and support services for the students, has been highly successful and is currently serving a total of 165 emotionally disturbed students in the schools' special education programs.

City Council Monday appropriated $13,775 to fund the program to the end of the year. The program is supported by the State Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Earthquake support

The City of Virginia Beach is on record as supporting efforts to help earthquake victims in the Naples-Salerno area of Italy.

In a resolution approved Monday afternoon, City Council encourages donations to the Italian Earthquake Relief Fund. A copy of the resolution was forwarded to the Papal Nuncio in Washington and the Catholic Relief Agency and the grand Lodge of the State of Virginia Order Sons of Italy.

Martin Cornetta, state Sons of Italy vice president, thanked Council for its action.

Shorter meetings

Virginia Beach City Councilman, W. H. Kitchin III has suggested that some consideration be given to adding another meeting to the Planning Commission's schedule to decrease the work load.

He told Council Monday afternoon that after attending meetings of the Planning Commission, which are held in the evenings, he decided that the length of the meetings, sometimes from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. might make it "difficult to stay on objective."

Stan and Pam Jones

Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon agreed to reconsider on Jan. 5 an application of Stanley and Pamela K. Jones for a conditional use permit for single-family dwellings in the AG-1 Agricultural District on a 20.53 acre parcel on the west side of Sandbridge Road.

The application was denied last week by a vote of 6-5 as contrary to the city's Comprehensive Plan.

Councilman Reid Ervin suggested that if the developer could work out some agreement with the developer of the golf course and residential development going up behind the property to let him tie in with city water and sewer, the application might be considered more favorably.

Pier removed

Negotiations with a contractor for the removal of remains of the old steel pier at 2nd Street may lead to the removal of more steel in the Potters Fence to the north.

By a vote of 10-1 City Council Monday afternoon authorized city manager George L. Hanbury to negotiate with the low bidder, of two, for the steel pier debris and pile removal project with a possibility of reducing the price, $154,764, by reducing the scope of the work. Councilmen Donald Merrick voted against the authorization.

Public works director Oral Lambert Also suggested that negotiations may extend the contract to include removal of the Potters Fence, a metal A-frame construction about 500 feet offshore between 17th and 20th Streets. The fence, a device created by John Potter to prevent erosion and to rebuild the beach, was erected in 1972 at a cost of approximately $115,000.

The steel pier was removed in 1977 by the owner after receiving permission from City Council. David Grochmal, assistant to the city manager, at an informal meeting Monday, told Council that the owner spent 1½ years to remove the pier when the surfing area north of Rudee Inlet had to be closed.

He said that in May of 1978 most of the work was completed and it appeared that all the steel had been removed. The area was opened to surfers in the summer but by August shifting sand disclosed more steel debris. Although the area was opened again in 1979, more debris was found in the spring of 1980. Because of injuries to surfers, the area has been closed since June of 1980.

In answer to a question from Councilwoman Barbara

Henley, Grochmal said there was no way the owner could be held liable. He said that a poor job had been done originally.

At present the city marks the area but may still be held liable for injuries.

The work involves digging into the sand and cutting the pilings at desired elevations including the all of the original 28 pile bents and extends some 500 feet seaward of the shoreline.

The estimate for removal of Potters Fence is approximately $21,000.

Combined efforts

Beach Ballet in Nutcracker set

By Istvan Ament
Special to the Sun

The presentation of the ninth annual "Nutcracker" in December promises to be even more spectacular than ever, thanks to the combined dancing talents of the Old Dominion University/Virginia Beach Ballet.

This happy combination of a wide range of dancing talents was cemented in July 1978 by the merger of the Old Dominion Community Ballet and the Academy of the Virginia Beach Ballet. While the two companies performed together last year, this year's "Nutcracker" will be the first in which they have appeared as an integrated, cohesive company, and the local ballet scene will be richer for it.

The merger is also providing Virginia Beach dance students the opportunity to perform with two talented international dancers, Nancy Raffa, a soloist with the recently-formed Makarova and Friends, and Sarwat Mourat Kaluby, principal dancer with Egypt's Cairo Ballet.

Dancing with Raffa will be all the more interesting for Beach students because of her age. At 16, she is the same age as many "Nutcracker" cast members, but has already won international recognition as the 1980 gold medal winner at the prestigious International Ballet Competition in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Virginia Beach students will dance a variety of roles in "The Nutcracker," Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky's beloved Christmas classic depicting a young girl's fanciful dream journey through the Land of Sweets.

Cynthia Tamayo, a veteran of both companies, will be featured in Act I as the Colombine doll, as well as other roles, including Waltz of the Snowflakes and the Waltz of the Flowers. Other Beach students will add strength to the ranks of the mice and soldiers, and the Arabian, Russian and Spanish dances.

"The Nutcracker" will be performed at Chrysler Hall with the Virginia Philharmonic Orchestra under the able direction of Maestro Walter Noona, long a pre-eminent figure on the Virginia Beach music scene.

Choreography for the ballet is by Istvan and Ana Ament, artistic directors.

of the ODU/Virginia Beach Ballet.

Performance dates are Friday, Dec. 19 at 8 p.m.; Saturday, Dec. 20 at 8 p.m., and Sunday, Dec. 21 at 3 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the Scope box office and all Video-seat locations.

Beach Jaycees sell Christmas Firs and Pines

By Bob Hayes
Special to the Sun

The Virginia Beach Jaycees will sell various types of Christmas trees through Sunday, Dec. 21 at Hilltop North, between Shoney's restaurant and Dominion National Bank.

Types of trees available include Frazier and Balsam Firs; and White and Scotch Pines.

The trees were cut from small farms on in Southwest Virginia. (Remember, the smaller the farm the closer to Christmas they can wait before cutting their fresh trees).

Sizes range from table-top to 14 feet. Most trees, however, are from six to eight feet tall.

Proceeds from the tree sale will go back into community service projects sponsored by the Jaycees.

We are open seven days a week, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

NOTE: A purchase of $10 or more at any of Hilltop's stores and restaurants will be rewarded by a discount card good for $2 off any tree on our lot. Hilltop has been kind enough to sacrifice at least 20 of their parking spaces and provide us with electricity for our lot for many years. Please show them your thanks and support, and insure our future use of the shopping center by shopping at Hilltop this Christmas.

World premier at Pavilion

Sunday Pops sold out!

The Virginia Sunday Pops World Premier performance this weekend at the pavilion has been sold out.

The show, conducted by Beach resident Walter Noona, may be seen by the general public for free, however, this Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Pavilion.

"The Sleepy Little Shepherd", which will be conducted by Maestro Walter Noona, began its musical life as an individual song written for adult chorus in 1971. From this original idea of a shepherd boy who unknowingly witnesses the effect of Christ's birth from a hillside in Bethlehem, grew the delightful orchestrated children's cantata involving a narrator, soloists, dancers and chorus.

Susan Noona, young daughter of the maestro, has choreographed the piece and worked with the six dancers who are provided by the ODU-Va Beach Ballet. The chorus has been selected from seventh-grade choruses throughout the Virginia Beach School System. The narrator is Lee Lively and soloists are Pamela Scott and Tim Shaffer, who portray The Mother and The Boy, Joel, respectively.

Other works to be performed on the program include J. C. Bach's "Sinfonia for Double Orchestra in Eb", Cluck's "Dance of the Blessed Spirit" and Haydn's "Toy Symphony". Walter Noona will be the featured piano soloist in a variety of Christmas selections.

A limited number of $8.00 seats are still available for this special Holiday program which offers cabaret-style seating with wine and cheese trays available. Special rates are offered to students, senior citizens and military-enlisted.

For ticket information and reservations, call the Virginia Orchestra Group Office at 623-2310 or 380-0040 on the Peninsula.

Tom-Tom awarded

For the third year in a row, the weekly student newspaper, "Tom-Tom," of Kemps Landing Intermediate School in Virginia Beach, has won a first place award from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

The award was announced recently at Columbia University's 57th annual contest for newspapers and newsmagazines from junior, middle, and elementary schools across the nation.

"Tom-Tom" is written and produced by sixth and seventh grade students at Kemps Landing, under the direction of teacher sponsor Don Hood. While the newspaper is staffed by student editors and reporters, all students are urged to contribute stories.

"Tom-Tom" is distributed to students and their parents during each school week. In its seven-year history, "Tom-Tom" boasts of never having missed an issue even despite some severe snowstorms last year which delayed printing.

A CSPA judge commented in a critique of "Tom-Tom," "It's a delight to read a real school newspaper." "Tom-Tom" features a blend of school and student news, reports on energy conservation and aluminum reclamation drives, math puzzles, and scientific cartoons, all on a single legal-size sheet.

"Tom-Tom" has also won two superior ratings and two excellent ratings from the Southern Inter-scholastic Press Association, sponsored by the University of South Carolina.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Marital or partnership difficulties may require the help of a professional counselor. You're too close to the situation to make good judgments alone. Concentrate on efficiency in the work-place and resist the tendency to daydream.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Be objective in your dealings with others. Not the time to approach a superior with new ideas. You could resent the interruption of the holiday and want to push through projects immediately afterward. Don't! Play a waiting game!

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Family problems and disagreements with friends can touch off your temper if you let it. Compromises can be reached if you but try. Curb impulsive actions and stick to routine matters. After the first of the year you can make changes.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — You can complete a project after the first of the year that was too complicated to finish before. The budget could require some first aid, and you should resolve to work harder, earn more and spend less. Be thorough in all you do.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 —

Also Leo Ascendant) — A quiet New Year's Eve may be in order. Straighten out domestic problems so you can get the new year off to a rousing start on the job. Clean up projects left hanging uncompleted due to the holidays and be especially cooperative with co-workers.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Excessive spending for the holidays could be a source of worry now. Get affairs back in order and concentrate on career matters. Associates may be caught up in their own affairs so don't count on too much co-operation.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Although you may want to get back to work, others may not be available so don't get frustrated. After the first of the year you can make important contacts that forward your interests noticeably. Romance is bright and stimulating.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Make sure you don't overdo the New Year's Eve festivities by over-indulgence in food and drink. After the first you can forge full speed ahead toward your personal aims and goals. Take some time to yourself for creative pursuits.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — A small, intimate gathering on New Year's Eve may be more pleasant than a large affair. Watch yourself that you don't overdo the drinking, but if you do, then don't drive! After the first of the year a reconciliation with a friend is possible.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — A lover's quarrel could upset your New Year's Eve plans if you aren't careful. After the first of the year you can expand on a career idea with the help of a friend. Since you're full of confidence now, you can get the project launched.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Spend a quiet New Year's Eve with close friends. Don't let frustrations at work interfere with your party spirits. Spend the first few days of the new year relaxing and meditating on your personal philosophy, ethics and goals.

Beach expert warns

Protect Beach homes over Christmas holidays

By Doris Campbell,
Special to the Sun

Each holiday season, many Virginia Beach residents pack up their gifts and travel away from their homes to be with friends and family. And what worse way to end a happy Christmas trip than to come back to a house that's been robbed.

Most burglars are unskilled and likely to choose unoccupied homes that are easy to enter. As well as leaving all windows and doors tightly locked, you should give your vacant house a lived-in look.

Here are several suggestions from Virginia Extension sources to lessen the risk of a home being identified as an "easy take."

- Set a radio and some indoor lights on automatic timers.

- Leave outside lights on at night.

- Set your telephone bell on low so that unanswered ringing can't be heard outside the house.

- Leave window shades and blinds in various open and shut positions so the house will look occupied.

- Ask a neighbor to park and extra car in your driveway.

- Ask someone to pick up daily mail and other items from your doorstep or mailbox.

- Have a neighbor use your trash cans while you are away.

- Don't leave notes to workmen, family or friends on your door.

- Have merchandise delivered to a neighbor in your absence.

- Don't hide keys in obvious places such as in the mailbox, under the doormat, or on a ledge near the door.

- Don't talk about the trip beforehand in a public place or with strangers.

Tom Baker wins Pork Award

By Sherrie R. Whaley
Special to the Sun

A Virginia Beach Extension agent has been awarded the first Virginia Pork Industry Service Award for extension personnel during ceremonies recently held at the annual state Pork Conference.

Thomas H. Baker, 3712 Gresham Court, was nominated for the honor by the Tidewater Pork Producers. He is a member of that organization as well as the American Society of Animal Science and the Virginia State Pork Federation.

Donna Paxson, secretary of the Tidewater Pork Producers, said, "Tom Baker has become a household word to the Tidewater pork producers because of his efficiency and support."

"He has been extremely helpful in the planning and design of swine operations in the Virginia Beach area," she continued. "He's always concerned when problems arise and gives much of his time to help solve them."

Animal science

Baker received his B.S. degree in animal science from the University of Tennessee and his M.S. in livestock production from the University of Illinois. He has served as the livestock specialist in the Virginia Beach Extension office for three years.

Other contributions Baker has made to the Virginia swine industry include serving on the planning committee for the Virginia State Market Hog Show and as chairman of the judging contest at the State Market Hog Show. He also worked for pork producers in securing certification of their waste management systems by the State Water Control Board.

Additional awards the Tennessee native has received include the Tidewater Pork Producers Association Service Award for 1979 and a recognition for Outstanding Extension work from the same group in 1980.

Baker is married to the former Anne Bailey of Mount Vernon.

Walter, Carol, and Susan Noona collaborated to produce, "The Sleepy Little Shepherd"

Carol Noona confesses

Creating The Shepherd became a labor of love

By Greg Goldfarb,
Sun Editor

It's not often that an entire city is presented a Christmas gift. But that's what happened in Virginia Beach this year.

The holiday gift was a Christmas musical, written and produced by Beach residents Carol and Walter Noona and presented to several thousand Beach residents last weekend at the Pavilion.

Performed by the Virginia Sunday Pops, conducted by Walter Noona, dancers in the production included artists-in-residence at the childrens' chorus of 70 members was also featured at sold out world premier concert.

The two part musical drama, set in Israel, features original music and lyrics created by Noona and his wife Carol. Susan Noona, one of the Noonas' five daughters, directed the choreography.

"The Sleepy Little Shepherd," centers around a shepherd boy, and the birth of Christ which he witnesses but is unable to impart to others because of his reputation for telling tall stories. The score, said composer Noona, has Israel and Oriental influences.

The premier musical was presented as part of the pops concerts's regular series, which traditionally features a classical beginning, an original middle, and a conventional end.

Many details

The score, with lyrics, has been notated by Noona, and is available for public purchase. It may be used by educational, as well as public and private institutions. Transposing the notes and rests from the instrument to the treble and bass clefs, according to Noona, is the most laborious part of creating and publishing an original musical work.

"Writing 'The Sleepy Little Shepherd,'" said Noona, "was alot of fun. The hard part comes, however, when you have to write the orchestration for over 70 pages of score. I mean, it took me two hours just to write out the oboes' part."

"The Beach audience is warm and sensitive, and their appreciation for musical works is unparalleled" - Noona

Carol Noona described the notation experience this way:

"It's alot of work," she said, "but it's a labor of love."

The Noonas' have been writing music for publication since the early 1960's.

"We've been writing music since about 1962," Noona said, "That was when the Bedwin Publishing Company opened its music department and was looking for a composer to help get it underway. I competed against eight other composers."

Carol Noona describes the new mucisal as holiday oriented.

"There's always a certain magic around Christmas," she said, "so we thought this would be the perfect time for the 'The Sleepy Little Shepherd.'"

(See Beach Page 4)

Dancers Herrin, Ghiselin, Lownsbury, and Norman

Seventy Virginia Beach children comprized the chorus for "The Sleepy Little Shepherd". All the students were seventh graders from Beach public junior high schools.

Beach audiences are great!

"It is the story of a child, Joel, who sees the birth of Christ and hears all the animals singing and rejoicing. The story is told through the eyes of the child.

"The score is very singable, soft, melodic, with traditional holiday overtones."

Noona said that although the show was written for primarily for youths, it sacrifices nothing of the art form.

"Carol and I decided that a score should not sacrifice good music for words," Noona said, "or vice versa.

"Carol is good with words; I'm not. I make the music; and hear the two together when we're composing.

Noonas' daughter, Susan, said she likes performing dance more than creating it.

"I've been dancing for many years," the Mary Washington College graduate said, "and I like to perform more than anything else."

Tidewater Ballet Association dancers, and director, (l - r) include: Paul Ghiselin, 19, a dancer of two years; Suzanne Lownsbury, 18, one year; Gary Norman, 19 one year; Christye Herrin, 16, five years; and Susan Noona, 22, a dancer of eight years.

Beach unique

Noona, who has had up to 15 musical instruction books published, said Virginia Beach audience are unique.

"The Virginia Beach residents make for one of the best audiences I have ever played for in my life," Noona said.

"The Beach audience is warm and sensitive, and their appreciation for musical works is unparalleled. They are not cold at all, and very, very loyal."

The Noonas travel much, but hope to reside indefinitely in Virginia Beach.

"We really like this city," they said. "we travel a great deal but plan to keep our house here in the Birdneck Point section of the Beach. We have been Beach residents since 1960."

SUNshine Girl

Baker loves the Beach!

"Virginia Beach is a very progressive town," said SUNshine Girl Katherine "Kitten" Baker.

"It's like a little California, only in Virginia Beach the weather is more variable."

A Virginia Beach native, Kitten is 25 years old. She and her husband of five years, Beach businessman Wayne Baker, live in the Halifax section of Virginia Beach, and have one daughter: Kristen, 3.

She plans to stay in Virginia Beach indefinitely.

"I really like living here in Virginia Beach," Kitten said, "and will stay here unless a golden opportunity comes my way. It would have to be a tremendous opportunity to make me leave because I like this town alot."

Kittens' hobbies include golfing; cooking; pressing and drying fresh flowers and making pictures out of them; sewing and playing tennis.

She enjoys listening to Jazz music; her favorite artist is George Klemmers. The Iron Gate House and Trixx are her favorite Virginia Beach nightspots.

In the future Kitten plans to broaden her modeling activities.

"I would like to make modeling a full time career," she said, "but to do that it will take much work in many areas."

Shanks going out

Annual Chamber luncheon attracts 400

By Greg Golfarb,
Sun Editor

"I was in Virginia Beach once before," said Phillips. Petroleum Company President and Chief Executive Director, William C. Douce. "But that was 20 years ago. I remember liking it here then, and so far from what I've seen, I still like it now."

Douce recently addressed the annual membership luncheon of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce. The chambers' new president, Nancy Creech, was installed during the luncheon held in the city owned Pavilion arts and conference center. The outgoing president is Clenton Shanks.

Before Douce's address, pre-luncheon music was provided by the Atlantic Fleet Band. The invocation was by Chaplain C. E. LeMasters, senior chaplain, Station, Oceana. Highlights of Douce's address included the following statements:

"Chamber vice president, Bill Center tells me that in the past decade Virginia Beach has been the fastest growing area on the eastern seaboard," Douce said. "I understand that within the next five years you expect to become the largest city in the state."

"You in this room who have worked diligently as a Chamber of Commerce merit a pat on the back for the vision and hard work which has set Virginia Beach on this path of progress.

"I'm sure, too, that you are experiencing all the usual growing pains that accompany economic expansion. I'm sure that with the leadership of this Chamber the growth you are experiencing will truly be quality growth the kind that only comes by casting a watchful eye to the future."

"The vision, ambition, and dedication evidenced by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce are the very traits that will be needed on a national level to solve some of the pressing problems that confront our country. We have shown these characteristics in ample measure in our national history, and I have no doubt they will be summoned again to meet the challenges ahead."

Douce, looking ahead to Reagans' administration said:

"I am heartened by indications that the new Reagan administration endorses market pricing of oil and natural gas," Douce said. "He has even voiced tentative support for accelerating the current timetables for decontrol. This step unquestionably would provide more funds to spur additional domestic exploration and development."

Nuclear energy, said Douce, must be safe:

"Our continued use of nuclear power should be based on a greater commitment to safety by utility managements," he said, "Better training of reactor operations, improved instrumentation in the control room, and improved industry efforts to provide the public with factual information about this important energy source."

Douce cites spirit crisis:

"The challenge to business that this country faces is part of a larger challenge that goes to the very fiber of America and its people," he said. We are facing in this country a crisis of the spirit. Perhaps as much as any of the factors we have already discussed, this crisis of the spirit is having the greatest impact on American business today."

Douce history

Douce is president and chief executive officer of Phillips Petroleum Company.

Douce was elected chief executive officer on April 29, 1980. He also continued in the position of president, a post he was elected to in 1974. He was also elected chief operating officer in 1974, but relinquished this title upon becoming chief executive officer.

Douce began his career with Phillips in 1942 and over the years worked in the company's refining and chemicals operations. He has been a senior executive since 1969 when he was elected a senior vice president and a member of the company's board of directors.

Have a merry Christmas holiday filled with beautiful things. We want to wish the best to all of our fine patrons.

LOVE

Love created Christmas day...

Love comes early,

Love will stay —

Never wither,

never fade —

If we faithfully persuade

It to live and grow...

If the heart is prone to dream

When the firelight's golden gleam

Dances on a chimney wall

Holding stockings,

large and small

Filled from top to toe...

And remember feet

that crept

Past the place where

Mother slept...

Noses breathing

spicy whiffs...

Fingers touching

Christmas gifts:

Many dreams ago!

Love is great enough

to bless

Hearts with warmth

and happiness:

Warmth that rarely

disappears

But will give declining

years

Iridescent glow.
